BRITAIN WELCOMES WAR-TIME ENEMY TO CIRCLE OF FRIENDS

Premier Baldwin and Mr. Winston Churchill at Guildhall Banquet Review Relations With Germany—Hand of Friendship Offered With Approval of Tried Allies

Reconciliation of Europe Will Lead Whole World on Forward Path

LONDON, Nov. 9. (C.P. Cable)—In the beautiful and historic setting of the Guildhall, the outstanding figures in the public life of Great Britain gathered tonight for the annual Lord Mayor's banquet. The ministers of the Crown, as is customary, have an account of the past year's stewardship of their offices. The warmth of the welcome accorded the successive arrivals was most marked in the case of Premier Stanley Baldwin, who came to deliver his sixteenth successive Lord Mayor's Day banquet speech.

The Premier for once ignored domestic politics and devoted his speech entirely to foreign affairs. He recalled from Peru to China his review of a constant note of satisfaction. Mr. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was invited to speak for Sir Austen Chamberlain, at present in Canada, took a foreign theme. Germany, "There will be no discouragement among our former allies in welcoming the representatives of a brave nation from whom we were so terribly sundered by the war, when we jointly embarked a series of intricate discussions with German representatives on matters financial," he said. "We will embark thereon with sure confidence that at the end there results mutually beneficial to all, and capable of carrying the whole world forward on a surer, surer foundation."

The liberation of German finance from the foreign interference which is a subject which we in this country regard as of high value and importance."

VICTORS AND VANQUISHED

Premier Baldwin opened his address with a similar note. He recalled at some years ago "we were divided into two camps, the victors and the vanquished."

Premier Poincare Expected to Form New Government

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The Havas agency late tonight reported that less complications arise Premier Poincare would form a cabinet tomorrow, containing the same ministers as the last, with three exceptions. M. Louis Marin, former minister of pensions; Eduard Herriot, former minister of public instruction; and M. Leon Perrier, former minister of colonies, would be replaced respectively by Albert Sarraute, Yvon Delbos and Rene Flandin like their predecessors.

Lindbergh in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 9.—Colonel Carlos A. Lindbergh arrived here tonight for his second visit, flying from without a stop from Teteranes Ranch in the State of Chihuahua, to the Viduena army air base, just outside the city. The plane of more than 800 miles covered in 8 hours and 20 minutes. Col. Alexander J. McNab, military attaché of the United States here, who had been his flying companion during recent visits in Northern Mexico, was a sealer in the plane.

Scene of Impressive Ceremony in Japan

THIS is the Shishin-den—also spelled Shishin-den—the great hall of state of the Kyoto Palace and the scene of the enthronement. The Taka-Mikura—the throne or seat of the Most High—faces the south and the ceremony culminates in the formal occupation of the seat by the Emperor. The entire floor of the Shishin-den is covered with brocade and the path to the throne is covered with matting and white cloth for the occasion. On the eaves is hung a curtain of narrow silk embroidered with a symbol of the sun. The present Shishin-den was erected in 1855 and is a reproduction of a hall of the same name in the Imperial Residence of the Great Palace of Kyoto's early days. Two enthronements have been held within the present Shishin-den.

Unusual Ceremony Marks Observance by Victoria Japanese of Enthronement of Emperor and Empress

TIME COINCIDED WITH KYOTO SCENE

Last night the hall of the United Church Japanese mission was the scene of a ceremony which was full of dignity and simplicity, since the observance of a national custom in a foreign land loses little of its dignity by reason of its necessary simplicity.

The Victoria branch of the Japanese Association, which is affiliated with the Vancouver Japanese Association, and co-operates with the Japanese Consul, meets every month, and has a membership of about sixty. The ceremony which took place last night was carefully timed to correspond with the crowning of the Emperor Hirohito, in Kyoto.

BLACK JACKS USED TO QUELL ESCORT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—Finger prints taken from a small coupe, from which Lottie Pickford, sister of Mary Pickford, and her escort, Jack Daugherty, former husband of the late Barbara La Marr, were dragged, beaten, robbed and Miss Pickford kidnapped early today, were being studied tonight by police fingerprint experts. The attack and kidnapping, which occurred about 3 o'clock this morning, was reported to the police several hours later, after Miss Pickford had been released and returned to her home.

Miss Pickford displayed a bruised and bloodied wrist and told police that her assailants had kicked her body until it was a mass of bruises. Daugherty's left ear was bruised and bloody, and he had two welts on the back of his head, and another on his jaw from the blackjacks of the assailants.

Descriptions of the four men were given the police by Miss Pickford. They were described as being about nineteen and twenty years of age, with the exception of the apparent leader, who spoke Spanish and appeared to be a few years older. Miss Pickford told the police that Daugherty was escorting her home from a night club in her own car when they were attacked.

Mother Turkey Proudly Shows Fugitive Brood

A turkey which has stolen her nest and hatched every egg is to be seen on the farm of Mrs. Young, Metchoin. The young birds are now seventeen days old.

In reporting this incident to the Colonist, Mr. J. R. Terry, secretary of the B.C. Turkey Club, says that the occurrence of a hen turkey stealing away and hatching her brood is not uncommon, but that very few turkeys have ever been reported as having been successful in bringing off a 100 per cent hatch at this time of the year.

Kyoto Enthronement Links Modern Japan With Age of Old Gods

KYOTO, Japan, Nov. 10.—Hirohito, 124th of the Imperial line that reigns over Japan, began his day of enthronement by kneeling this morning before the shrine of the sun goddess, his great ancestress, and invoking her blessing to the end that the heavenly "Sun Dynasty" continue "unbroken for ages eternal," and that perpetual prosperity and happiness be vouchsafed its loyal subjects.

This morning's ceremony preceded the enthronement proper, which was preparatory to the enthronement proper this afternoon, when the Emperor will ascend his dais and announce to his subjects and the nations of the world the fact of his accession. The morning observances were essentially religious. Those of the afternoon will be rather political.

His Majesty's worship before the Sun Goddess' sanctuary was an awe-inspiring rite that carried the imagination back to a bound to a world in which human institutions were young and primitive. It illustrated the unique longevity of the remarkable dynasty of Japan, which in one unbroken succession has spanned the gap between the dawn of history and our modern world.

THE "PLACE OF AWE" The Emperor's communion with the Sun Goddess took place in the Shinkyo-Den, the detached hall of the Imperial Palace now containing the Kasikodokoro, the "Place of Awe." This sanctuary, portable, like the Emperor's throne, is carried by a team of oxen.

Widow Waits Six Years for Recognition

After waiting six weary years, often faced with considerable problems to make ends meet, Mrs. Richman, of 1013 Vancouver Street, has been recognized as a war widow entitled to pension in the right of her husband, the late Regimental Sergeant-Major Richman, of the 2nd C.M.R., who died in 1922. He sustained several wounds in the Great War, his bravery in that struggle being recognized with the Military Medal, Mons Star, Victory Medal and General Service Medal, and he had also a decoration for an earlier campaign.

Mrs. Richman asks the Colonist to convey her thanks to Mr. G. H. Sledge, soldier advocate, for continued pressure to secure recognition of her case.

COMPLETION OF MEMORIAL AVE. WITHIN SIGHT

Park Superintendent Will Make Report of Cost—Plan Evolved for Spreading Cost of Maintenance

SIX MILES OF TREES IN PLAN

A concerted effort will be made by the Chamber of Commerce, Victoria and Saanich, to complete the planting of trees on Memorial Avenue. Directors of the chamber waited upon the Victoria-Saanich parks and beaches committee yesterday afternoon to urge that committee to complete the avenue.

The Chamber of Commerce will contribute $500, Victoria $500 and Saanich $500 toward the cost of planting the trees. But before the work is carried out it will first have to be decided who is to bear the cost of maintaining the boulevard. Saanich has declared it will not bear the full cost.

At a result of discussion on this phase of the work it was decided to spread the cost of maintenance over a long period of years. The plan was also to approach the Oak Bay to see if that municipality would not contribute something toward the cost.

In the meantime the parks superintendent will investigate the actual cost of completing the avenue and make a report to the next meeting of the committee.

Memorial Avenue was suggested by the Chamber of Commerce shortly after Armistice was declared. Its establishment was for the purpose of having a permanent memorial to British Columbia soldiers who were killed during the war. The number of trees on Memorial Avenue would equal that of the casualty list, so that there would be a tree for every fallen soldier.

Eventually it was planned to have a plate on each tree with the name of each soldier who gave his life in the war. At both ends of the avenue would be a memorial to the fallen. The avenue is six miles in length and leads to Mount Douglas Park and Cordova Bay.

Wear a Poppy Today, and So Aid Veterans

The poppy is worn throughout the British Empire as the "flower of remembrance" to commemorate those who lie not only in Flanders fields but along the whole far-flung battle line where sons and daughters of the Empire died in their country's defence.

Victory poppies are made solely by disabled veterans who are prevented by reason of their war disability from competing in the open labor market. The poppies which figure in the public eye only a few days each year, have been made by these crippled of the war who in many cases stoop over their benches at this work pretty nearly every working day of the year.

What profits are made by the Armistice Period Committee from the sale of poppies are used throughout the year in distributing relief and comforts to needy ex-service men, their widows and orphans.

In Flanders' fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing,
Scattered their seeds, hand and gun.
We are the dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders' fields.

FIFTY YEARS OF SERVICE

A short sketch of the life work of Colonel John Staughton Dennis, the great chief colonization commissioner of the C.P.R., whose enduring optimism and decision to "fight it out on that line" has meant so much in developing the Empire's greatest wheat field.

Drillers at California Oil Well Strike Tremendous Flow of Gas Which Ignites and Explodes—Steel Derrick Reduced to Molten Mass—Others Wrecked

Surrounding Towns Shaken As if by Earthquake Force

Damage Already Caused Estimated at Million Dollars—Network of Steam and Mud Lines Is Being Connected to Be Used in Battle With Burning Well

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—While deputy sheriffs fought back long lines of sightseers, attracted by the 100-foot torch of flame, several hundred men tonight battled the second outflow well in the Santa Fe Springs oilfield, which ignited when it came in as a gasser this morning and has already caused damage estimated at more than a million dollars. Nine derricks on nearby locations were destroyed by the flaming gasser, and others in the immediate district were pulled down to save them. Another oil well was believed to be in some danger if the wind should throw the flames in its direction.

A network of steam and mud lines was being connected up tonight to be used in the major offensive against the burning well on property owned by the Bellview Oil Company gusher in the same field. The Texas Union, General Petroleum Associated and Willshire Oil companies will be represented at a general meeting of operators in the field tomorrow called to organize the fire-fighting campaign.

As pipe-fitters worked tonight to prepare the long lines of steam and mud lines, other men attached cables to derricks considered in danger and teams of trucks then pulled the lower structures down. One derrick fell of its own accord early this morning when the blast of the well and the explosion which followed shook the foundations out from beneath the nearby structure.

TOWNS SHAKEN
The explosion shook the nearby towns of Norwalk, Downey and Whittier with the force of an earthquake. Dishes were hurled off shelves and in Norwalk, H. E. Herick, oil paper publisher, was tossed from his bed.

The steel derrick over the Bellview well was reduced to a molten mass soon after the gas was ignited. Friction of gravel against the casing of the well was blamed for the starting of the fire.

Only six days ago engineers succeeded in capping the Getty Oil Company gusher in the same field after it had burned for more than forty days. The Getty well was also ignited almost at the same time that it came into production. The two wells are within a few hundred feet of each other, and fire-fighting equipment from the other well was rushed to the scene of the second blaze. The heat was so intense that fire fighters worked with streams of water pouring down on them.

Oil men estimated that the Bellview well, under normal conditions, would produce 25,000,000 cubic feet of gas under 20,000 pounds pressure daily.

FAMOUS PAINTINGS STOLEN IN MOSCOW

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—Dispatches from Moscow report that five valuable paintings by Rembrandt, Titian, Correggio and others have been stolen from the State Museum in Moscow.

CHICAGO DAY IS DARKENED

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—For more than two hours today Chicago's business district was plunged into darkness as black as any night. The weather bureau reported that the extraordinary phenomenon was not the result of storm clouds, although the day was cloudy, but was caused by a ceiling of smoke with no wind to carry it away.

In Oak Park chickens went to roost and, at the municipal airport and in the loop area beacons were lighted to guide flyers coming into Chicago.

Blasting Powder Proves Fatal to Rancher's Cattle

They came, ate, and died.
This succinct summary of a bovine tragedy on the Soda Creek Ranch, emerged from an uncommon item directing the payment of $631 to Mr. J. Hargreaves for loss of cattle. The Provincial Cabinet passed through an Order in Council this week to compensate the rancher whose cattle showed a fatal predilection for the powder supply of roadmen working early this year on the highway between Williams Lake and Soda Creek.

It appears that the saltpetre in the powder is the irresistible attraction to the bovine palate. An investigation showed that the powder was left uncovered and the animals freely partook of the explosive delicacy.

VOLCANO FIRES MORE VILLAGES

ERUPTION OF MOUNT ETNA BURSTS FORTH AGAIN WITH RENEWED FORCE
Dwellings Burned or Buried—Widening Area of Fertile Lands Is Destroyed

CATANIA, Sicily, Nov. 9.—Another Sicilian village has fallen prey to the all-devouring lava which continues to pour from Mount Etna. Nuziata tonight was undergoing the same fate as its neighboring village, Mascali, which already was completely burned and buried under the advancing flow.

Only a part of Nuziata had been destroyed, but it had been completely evacuated by its inhabitants, who feared the same fate that overtook three men of Mascali whose escape was cut off while they slept, by the advancing lava streams.

The smoking volcano was more active tonight than for some hours. The principal fiery stream that it had disgorged had reached a point only sixty metres from the railway station of Mascali, and was proceeding inexorably onward at a rate of five metres an hour. A northern stream of lava had joined the central one. The third and southernmost stream was within a few hundred feet of the railway bridge at Glarre, and advancing at the rate of four feet an hour.

UNVEIL TWIN PORTRAITS OF TWO MONARCHS

In front of this shrine, over which were emblazoned the crests of Emperor and Empress, which represented a chrysanthemum and a tree, was a small table, on which were small jars of sake, from the necks of which protruded pieces of paper. Questioned in regard to this procedure the leaders of the association said that they were unable to give any reason for the ancient custom of placing their native drink before their shrines. It is as much a national Japanese custom as kneeling under the mistletoe in Occidental lands.

THE CEREMONY

Mr. T. Morimoto, who is the vice-president of the association in Victoria, introduced the president, Mr. M. Ishida, and then called upon the audience to stand. Mr. Ishida then approached the shrine. An order was given, and the audience, which packed the room, bowed their heads, remaining in this position while the president drew aside the blue curtain, and revealed a photograph of the Emperor and Empress. The magnificent national anthem was then sung, every member doing his full share of the singing, with a very impressive result, and the audience then stood at attention until exactly 10 o'clock, when they gave three resounding shouts of "Ban Zai." Again Mr. Ishida mounted the dais, again the order was given for heads to be bowed, and the curtain was reverently drawn once more over the picture. The ceremony was over. Here in Victoria, as all over the world, exiles from Japan who had met together for similar ceremonies, were shaking each other by the hand and congratulating themselves on the event.

The Kyowa Kwai, which is the Japanese name for the association, has for secretary to its Victoria branch, Mr. T. Morimoto, the most remarkable features of the ceremony was the courtesy of the hosts to their handful of guests, for whom they could not do enough.

BARRIE DECLARED GREAT LEG-PULLER

Speech at Bazaar Evokes Protest by Head of Stuart Society

OLASCOGOW, Nov. 9.—Sir James M. Barrie has been opening a bazaar at Edinburgh and receiving the freedom of the burgh, and also—most interesting of all—pulling people's legs. He is the greatest of living leg-pullers, and no matter how well known this is there are always some people who think that when he is solemn he is serious to them.

This latter was what happened at Edinburgh. The bazaar was for raising money for the upkeep of a day school for the children of Mary, Queen of Scots, and so he spoke about that romantic figure in the history of Scotland. But he had to be fantastic or he would not have been Barrie. So he solemnly assumed that the gathering was one of supporters of the Stuart cause. Thereafter he justified the abuse of day constituted against the abuse of the danger they were all running in holding such a bazaar for such a purpose, and he described Queen Mary's House in the middle of the previous night, interviewed the Queen herself, got a lot of interesting news, and then he made comments on Queen Elizabeth of England, problems of Scottish history about which there have been no end of argument, and on present-day ways and fashions as shown in the bazaar.

It was all very fine and very enjoyable, and the bazaar raised twice much money as the promoters hoped for, and so—apparently—everybody was satisfied.

But it was not so. Captain Henry Stuart Wheatley Crowe, the governor-general of the Royal Stuart Society thought it was not good enough. Within a day or two he had in the papers a letter of protest.

Not on the track, he said, of Barrie's "extraordinary speech" at Edinburgh—a speech which had more the appearance of a nightmare than anything else—he had himself received a sheet of protests. In his opinion nothing justified the abuse of history, it was not clever to poke fun at the beheading of Mary Queen of Scots, one of the most cruel and shameful tragedies in the history of England—there was need to ask the ghost of the unhappy Queen who wrote certain notorious letters of her friend, because it had been proved that these letters were forgeries, and it was a travesty of truth to say that Queen Elizabeth was a greater queen than Queen Mary. Elizabeth had not Mary's intelligence, learning nor courage, she was tyrannical, cruel and arbitrary.

And so on, and so on. The idea of taking Barrie's fantasy of a midnight interview with the ghost of Queen Mary, and the original speech of Captain Henry Stuart Wheatley Crowe had both his legs pulled and he evidently did not know it. After Barrie will have to preface his too long public speeches with a statement that he is not to be taken seriously. The feelings of bodies like the Royal Stuart Society should really be considered.

Speaking of bazaar reminds one of Aberdeen and of other jokes that cannot be taken seriously. There is for example that evergreen joke about Aberdeen's menaces. There is no end to the variations of that story, but it is one at bottom; and that is the Aberdeen joke. Certainly, the Aberdeen has humor enough in his composition to enjoy the joke and even to invent it, though they are all against himself.

But every now and then he gives very practical proof that they are only jokes. For example, when the city always leave with great opinions of the hospitality and generosity of its people, and they never find any trace of menaces in the dealings of individual citizens. They then see the humor of the Aberdeen stories. Further light on this subject has been afforded by a bazaar held in aid of a fund which the Lord Provost of Aberdeen promoted for helping the local hospitals. This bazaar raised $5,000 more than the Lord Provost asked for, as he described the result as "truly amazing." After this surely the Aberdeen joke might be given a rest.

It was, however, because it is the stock-in-trade of all the professional humorists, especially those of the alleged comic papers of London, that the Aberdeen joke is subject by applying the "mean" joke to Scotland as a whole, and to the country of Scotland. This equally a joke based on a misrepresentation, but to not ever think of protesting against it. The Scot laughs at it, or rather at the Englishman who thinks it is true. The Englishman thinks he is laughing at the Scot, whereas all the time the Scot is laughing at him—Montreal Star.

the Biblical Ark of the Covenant, wherein is enshrined the sacred mirror of the Imperial regalia, symbol of the Sun Goddess' spirit, carried before the Emperor in his Imperial progress from Tokyo to Kyoto, was placed shortly after His Majesty's arrival here on November 7 in an inner recess of the Runkyo-Den, which thus becomes for these few days the holy of holies of the Empire. Drums and gongs ranged around a stage in the central courtyard boomed thrice, the signal that the rites were to begin. Offerings were placed before the sanctuary, a Shinto priest read a prayer, and to the strains of ancient Shinto music the sacred of the sanctuary were drawn aside. Then the Emperor took his place in the area reserved for him within the temple, followed by the Empress and members of his court.

THE SACRED TREASURES

On stands near the Emperor's kneeling place a chamberlain placed the sacred sword and sacred jewel of the Imperial Regalia. Thus, for the only time in the whole of the enthronement ceremonies, the three sacred treasures—mirror, sword and jewel—appeared together.

The ceremony reached its climax as Hirohito advanced to the altar in front of the Kashikodokoro and addressed himself directly to the spirit of his divine ancestors. He was followed in this act of worship by the Empress and other members of the Imperial family.

The thrice-repeated booming of the gongs and drums announced to the assemblage the completion of the ceremony.

Brazil Welcomes Colonization by Japanese Folk

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 9.—The Brazilian Government today gave authorization to the main office of the Japanese company, Kaigai Kogyo Kabushiki, in Japan to begin its colonization schemes in Brazil. The order permits the company to operate banks, to buy and cultivate large tracts, and in fact to perform all operations necessary in the establishment of immigrants in their new homes.

The Kaigai Kogyo Kabushiki has a capital of five million yen, and brought 1,000 Japanese to Brazil in the current year.

Foreign Communists Said to Be Teaching Canadian Children

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 9.—George Nicholson, Chaplain, Ont., former member of Parliament for East Algoma, addressed the Anglican Diocese of Huron County last night and charged that "teachers paid by the Russian Government and the Communist movement" were implanting the elementary tenets of "Communism" and "Bolshevism" in the minds of children of Canada. This being done, he said, through 2,000 "schools" conducted in Canada each Sunday. He asserted there were sixteen such schools in Toronto and several in Fort William and Port Arthur.

RADIO CONTROL NOT NEW THING

Owing to the widespread publicity accorded to the German navy's target ship Zehringen, which is manoeuvred under wireless control, an impression seems to prevail that this vessel is unique. That is incorrect.

As far back as 1919 the American naval authorities converted the old battleship Iowa into a radio-controlled target ship, and very soon afterwards the British Admiralty did the same thing with H.M.S. Agamemnon. Both these vessels were quite successful. The Agamemnon served as a fleet target ship for six years. Without having a soul on board she could be made to steam through a wide range of speeds, to stop, go ahead or astern, and perform a number of evolutions. Recently the Agamemnon was scrapped and her place is now filled by H.M.S. Centurion, a super-Dreadnought of 22,000 tons. She is twice as large as the Zehringen, and it may be stated with confidence that she can do practically everything of which the German ship is capable.

The wireless control equipment of the Centurion is of the latest type, and represents a great advance over that of the Agamemnon. When the former is required to act as a target the crew leave the ship, whose movements thereafter are controlled by wireless from a destroyer, usually H.M.S. Shikari, which may be as much as a mile astern. Power is transmitted through the air by means of sufficient strength to work the electric motors by means of which the control gear of engines and steering apparatus is operated.

WOULD EXTEND TERM OF LOW COAL RATE

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—It is stated here that an effort will be made to have a six months' period next year in which Alberta coal may be brought to the central provinces at the reduced rate of $6.75 per ton. This summer a three months' period was provided, ending the last of July, when about three hundred tons had been moved. It is stated that this was not as successful as had been hoped for, and the Alberta operators will ask that the period be lengthened out, beginning in February.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—In a letter to the clergy of 130 churches in London diocese where reservation has been practised, although it is technically illegal, the Bishop directed them to continue reservation. He placed restrictions on some of the other observances followed by Anglo-Catholics. The letter, apparently, was sent to the other 60 churches of the diocese where reservation is not practised.

Survey by Plane Made of Northern Areas in Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—Civil flying operations are rapidly increasing in Canada year by year and one of the fields in which the most marked advance has been made is that of aerial surveying. The preliminary report for 1928 of the aerial photographic survey for survey purposes done by the Topographical Survey of the Department of the Interior, in cooperation with the Royal Canadian Air Force, shows in round numbers 53,000 square miles of territory covered.

Of this 23,000 square was by vertical photography and 31,000 by oblique. Of the 31,000 square miles covered in 1928 by oblique photography, 14,500 were in the valley of the Churchill River in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and 4,400 in Alberta, North of Lake Athabasca.

Secretary Mellon Sees Continued Prosperity For U.S. Under Hoover

The Daily Colonist and associated newspapers of the North American Newspaper Alliance publish exclusively herewith the first interview given by a cabinet member since the election of Herbert Hoover. It is Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, discussing with John P. Sinclair, special business and financial writer, the economic and financial outlook confronting the Hoover administration.

By JOHN P. SINCLAIR
(Copyright, 1928, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 9.—Higher standards of living, continued prosperity, and a constant growth in world wealth and importance under the engineering and organizing genius of President-elect Herbert Hoover, is Andrew W. Mellon's vision of the next four years.

Seated in his blue and mahogany office on the second floor of the Treasury Building, the tall, slight and in the popular mind, enigmatic Secretary of the Treasury, today sketched for me his picture of America's business and financial future.

Talking with Mr. Mellon one gains the impression of a man with strong emotions under complete control of an iron will. His clear, blue eyes are lighted with unusual vitality. His ruddy, healthy face betrays his seventy-three years. Yet his speech and manner are mild. Statements involving billions of dollars slip from his tongue in a casual, unemphatic way.

"In your speeches during the campaign," I said to Mr. Mellon, "you spoke of great economic forces by which the average man's welfare is so greatly affected. Exactly what did you mean by that?"

"That term," Mr. Mellon replied, "means a great many things. I was referring, primarily, to such things as production and consumption, especially as affected by buying power and the influences that go to increase or decrease buying power."

"High wages, of course," the Secretary explained, "constitute the most important element, and wages are affected by the consumer's demand for goods which labor produces. Quantity production and increased efficiency, both in human labor and machinery, have their effect."

"Governmental policies or protection afforded by tariff and immigration legislation are important, and a sound policy in the production and marketing of agricultural products will do much to increase and sustain buying power."

"Do you think the general economic factors of the business situation healthy? In other words, is there anything to indicate a let-down in present industrial activity?"

NO SLOWING UP

"I see no indication of a slowing up of industry. Most industries are able to regulate production more or less according to the demand. So long as reasonable caution is exercised and there is no undue piling up of inventories, there is no cause for concern."

"What in your opinion are the factors which have made the unusual and unique prosperity which industry has been enjoying in America for the last five or six years?"

"It was partly due, of course, to conditions following the war. First we were obliged to go through a cleaning-up period. It was necessary to readjust our inventories, to get rid of wartime taxes, to get the governmental debts, both domestic and foreign, in hand, and to help in stabilizing currencies abroad. This has been largely done."

"In the last two or three years the country has started in on a new constructive period. The time lost by the war has been more than made up, and from now on we can expect the natural and inevitable growth of the country, both in population and in wealth, to set new levels such as neither this nor any other country has ever reached before."

"You already discern evidence of what may be expected?" I asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Mellon, "our national income has passed ninety billion dollars, and is moving rapidly towards the hundred-billion mark. That means that at the present time the per capita income for each man, woman and child in this country is already more than $168. Of our national income, increasing large amounts are being saved. There is no exhaustion of our national resources and, leaving out of account wars and other great calamities, I can see no reason why the present upward trend in this country should not continue."

PROSPERITY TO CONTINUE

"You think, then, that prosperity in the United States will continue?"

"If by prosperity you mean a continuation of general well-being

Mr. Anscomb to Hold Meeting Dec. 10 or 11

Mr. Herbert Anscomb, candidate for mayor, is arranging a public meeting for the evening of December 10 or 11, at a place to be announced later, to which other majority aspirants have been invited.

Mr. Anscomb will also give campaign addresses over radio CFCF during election week.

Throughout the country and a steady improvement in our standard of living, there is no reason why it should not continue indefinitely. Of course, that statement is premised on the proposition that conservative and well tried economic principles shall continue to be followed."

"How can the Government be of the greatest service to business during the next few years?"

"In the first place, it can make sure that developments proceed along sound lines, as in recent years. Good state-manship consists as much in knowing what not to do as it does in taking affirmative action. I have already spoken of what can be done in maintaining sound land and immigration policies. Something can and will be done about agriculture, and there are many other things besides."

"Will America's position as a creditor nation mean that for many years to come she will be required to loan money in large amounts to her debtors in order to continue to trade with them and to collect the debts owed to us by foreign debtor Governments?"

"We shall, of course, continue to lend large amounts abroad. The savings of the American people must find an outlet, and our people will continue to invest wherever there is a prospect of securing the best returns on their money. But there is a good deal of nonsense talked about the importance of the debt payments in world trade."

CITES HUGE FIGURES

"In the last fiscal year the total amount paid us by foreign governments on account of principal and interest amounted to $86,000,000. During this same period our imports amounted to over four billion dollars and of this amount more than $4 per cent came in entirely free of duty. In addition to this, it is estimated that Americans traveling in foreign countries spent last year more than seven hundred million dollars."

"You think, then, that American prosperity has a direct relation to Europe and the war debts?"

"Certainly American buying power is one of the most important factors in Europe's recovery and future progress. In one of my speeches in the campaign I cited some very illuminating figures on this point. Although we have in this country less than 1 per cent of the world's population, we consumed last year 48 per cent of the world's total production of coffee, 53 per cent of the tin, 50 per cent of the crude rubber, 21 per cent of the sugar, 72 per cent of the raw silk, 36 per cent of the coal, 42 per cent of the pig iron, 47 per cent of the copper, and 89 per cent of the crude petroleum. Furthermore, we had 23,000,000 out of 30,000,000 automobiles in the whole world. That is some measure of what American buying power means not only to ourselves, but to European debtor nations and to the entire world."

"How will this buying power be affected by the rise in commodity prices, which people like Brookmire expect to take place during the next twelve months?"

MAKES NO PREDICTIONS

"I make it a rule to make no predictions about such matters. Given the facts as to production and consumption, one man's guess is as good as another's. As I see the present situation, money is plentiful and is available for all legitimate undertakings. Prices of copper and steel are not excessive and have remained fairly stable. We are in no immediate danger of excessive demand sending prices to such high levels as to make a slump in activity and consequently in prices inevitable. In the industrial world, things seem to be on a fairly even keel; and it is much better, of course, to have them so, with a slight upward tendency as at present."

"You think Mr. Hoover will be able to iron out some of the ups and downs which business and industry have always experienced from time to time?"

"I don't expect him to do the impossible, but I think he brings to the country special talents for analysis and organization, of which we seem particularly in need just now. That is what I meant when I said that Mr. Hoover understood the economic forces with which he must deal. He has already given evidence of this and has shown something of what can be done by his administration of the Department of Commerce. His opportunities for achievement have been very greatly enlarged now that he has been called to the most powerful office in the world."

"And your own future, Mr. Secretary?"

"That is something else," said the white-haired secretary, with a smile.

CHAMBER BACKS MEMORIAL AVE.

DIRECTORS FEEL PROJECT SHOULD BE COMPLETED AND MAINTAINED

Municipalities to Be Interviewed With View of Securing Contributions Towards Expenses

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce recorded its support of the proposal of completing and maintaining Memorial Avenue, and a committee was appointed to interview various municipalities for the purpose of obtaining financial contributions toward the project.

Charles E. F. Clark declared the avenue should be completed, "and I think all the people in Victoria feel that way about it. Some plan should be decided upon whereby the avenue could be finished and properly kept up."

Reeve William Crouch said Saanich was quite willing to bear its share of the upkeep of the project, but was not agreeable to shouldering the whole cost of maintenance.

That it would be a reflection upon the community if Memorial Avenue were not completed was the view expressed by Mr. B. C. Nicholas. "It is a fine avenue, and a splendid war memorial."

Mayor J. Carl Pendray said that the completion of the project and its upkeep should be a community effort in which all municipalities should join. Both Oak Bay and Esquimalt should contribute a proportion of the cost, he believed.

"Memorial Avenue must go ahead; it must be properly completed and adequately kept up," said Captain George McGregor.

Mr. R. W. Mathews's resolution that the proposal be approved, and a committee named to interview the municipalities for the purpose stated, carried unanimously.

MINISTER WINS PLOUGHING PRIZES

Hon. W. Atkinson, Provincial Agricultural Head, Is Fourth Both at Chilliwack and Ladner

The Province of British Columbia has a Minister of Agriculture that can not only plough a prize-winning furrow, but who can while doing so dictate matters pertaining to his department with brother farmers. This was exemplified at the ploughing matches held at Ladner and Chilliwack this week, which were attended by Hon. W. Atkinson.

He was urged to enter the contest in both matches, and carried off a prize. It is true that he did not come out at the top of the list. This could hardly be expected, for it is some stimulus that has been following the plough.

However, the practical knowledge of this important branch of farming, gained as a young man in the County of Huron, Ontario, and perfected in the alluvial lands in the Fraser Valley, has not been forgotten, and this week, ranked as fourth in both of the contests.

But the minister had another handicap in addition to that of being a little out of form. He was so

GREATER HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS

The Victoria outer harbor improvements, comprising the Ogden Point breakwater and the piers which it shelters, were constructed here under the aegis of a Conservative Government at Ottawa. Under the Liberals the control of these improvements was vested in the Canadian National Railways, but the harbor facilities have remained largely unused. Within the past year the municipality, through the sanction of the property owners, has brought about the construction of a grain elevator, and a cold storage plant is to be built also to promote trade. The development of trade at Ogden Point will depend, to some extent, on the exertions of our own citizens, and also on the attitude towards this port of both the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway. It will depend also, in the matter of the grain trade, on the attitude of the Wheat Pools of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The Federal Government has an investment of nearly $6,000,000 in the Victoria outer harbor facilities. Efforts are now being made to secure further improvements which will make the Ogden Point piers more serviceable, and to include in Dominion Government ownership the Richet docks. The proposal is that the latter should be acquired by the Canadian National Railways, a proposal which is being entertained favorably. The improvements noted contemplate an increase in trade due to the establishment of the wheat elevator and a cold storage plant. As an earnest of Victoria's need for further Greater Harbor improvements every effort should be concentrated on beginning grain shipments from this port with the minimum loss of time. Victoria's taxpayers have a large stake in the elevator and they want to see it put to the maximum use. The City Council, as the guardian of the taxpayers' stake in that facility, has an undoubted duty in doing everything that lies within its power to promote the flow of grain through this port. Once it is able to do this the case for Greater Harbor improvements will be substantially strengthened.

BOOKS FOR ALL

One section at least of the report of the Public Library Commission that has just been submitted to the Provincial Secretary will command the sympathy of the public. It is that which deals with the needs of the isolated communities of the province. Whether the plan proposed is practical or not only time will prove, but the needs are urgent. While British Columbia is well to the fore in reading advantages in the larger centres, its scattered population does not enjoy any adequate access to books. This is all the more to be deplored because so many who live in the lonely places have been accustomed in other days to many cultural advantages.

The general statistics for Canada and the United States indicate that of the forty-four per cent of population that has no access to public libraries, ninety-three per cent live in the country or in villages of 2,500 or less, and is therefore deprived of the opportunity for reading to be had in urban communities. It is probable that the handicap is still greater in British Columbia. It is not that there is no desire on the part of the isolated communities. On the contrary the records of the Provincial Library Commission reveal the insistent demand. At the moment quite a number of places are preparing for book service. It was found, too, in the course of the survey that the books supplied by means of the mission boats of the churches were eagerly accepted. As far as practical those who are on the outskirts of our country should be given books as one of the necessities of life.

POINTS OF VIEW

There is a world of difference between opinions expressed about the youth of the present generation. It is all a question of the point of view, and sometimes disability in judgment lies in making the estimate through colored political spectacles. This is perhaps the case with Miss Ellen Wilkinson, a Labor member of Parliament in Britain. Her viewpoint on the subject of youth is somewhat painful. For instance, she wants the Church, and presumably by this she means Christianity, to go out and fight "corruption, commercialism, greed and exploitation." If it did, she says, it would have behind it the enthusiasm of the youth that matters. She does not subscribe to the doctrine that "politics and the pulpit are terms that have little agreement."

Youth, Miss Wilkinson says, though possessed of an intelligent mind is experiencing the bitterness of being used as a robot, or "still worse, of not being used at all." She says no creed can reach youth "that preaches contentment and Heaven's delights." In other words, she wants religion to discard its spirituality and take on a material mantle. She says youth wants an installment of Heaven's delights now. "The young," she says, "believe that their elders have made a horrible mess of things and are not much better than they are," which she maintains is "an uncomfortable creed for their elders, but it is a stimulating challenge to the Church of the Carpenter of Nazareth."

It is refreshing to turn from the viewpoint divined by Miss Wilkinson to the estimate of youth entertained by Mr. Jeffrey Farnol, a full-blooded and virile novelist. He, too, discusses British youth, but from a different angle. Unlike Miss Wilkinson he believes that youth is as sound as ever, but he does not hesitate to give it a warning against being overcome by the environment of the times. Youth, he thinks, is taking things too lightly, living too much on the easy payment system. Instead of the young being discontented, as Miss Wilkinson infers they are, his estimate is that "everything is arranged for their enjoyment and they accept it too much as a matter of course."

Miss Wilkinson believes, as a Socialist, that everything should be done by the State for the people who form the State. Mr. Farnol, who is not a Socialist, says that, "after all, a man is made by what he does himself, and not by what is done for him." He does not believe that the young folks should reduce life to a flabby game because in doing so they run the risk of losing the best of it. If the game of life is flabby when youth tackles it, it becomes all the harder when it is begun in earnest, "and things come to the grapple." Mr. Farnol is afraid, "that whether we waste our breath in scolding or not, the day will come when they (the young) will blame themselves more bitterly than we could ever do."

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

Sir Kynaston Studd was invested yesterday in his office of Lord Mayor of the City of London. He is a sportsman and a philanthropist. When at Eton he played for two years on the cricket eleven and the following year, in 1878, represented Middlesex in county matches. From 1881 to 1884 he played for Cambridge University. In his last year captaining the eleven. His career is described as a life of service to mankind during which he has ever "played the game" with a "straight bat." As long ago as 1885 Sir Kynaston became honorary secretary of the Polytechnic and he has been its president since 1903. His activities have been athletic, social, educational and religious. He is a man who has done good by stealth. An eminent Freemason it is said that the "beauty of service" epitomizes his career. He is as fitting a man as has ever held the high honor of London's Lord Mayor.

When Mr. Mackenzie King returned recently from a trip to Europe he was received at Ottawa "by a guard of honor of 100 men of the Ottawa Highlanders." After the general salute it is related that Mr. King inspected the guard. This procedure may have been devised for political purposes, but it is not in accordance with military regulations. Mr. King is a civil functionary and as such is not entitled to military honors, unless, indeed, he enjoyed the position, by virtue of his office as Prime Minister, of Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Canada. This post he does not enjoy. A Montreal correspondent reminds Mr. King that even such statesmen as Pitt, Palmerston, Disraeli, Gladstone, Asquith and Baldwin have never been accorded guards of honor, and reminds him, moreover, how all England was once convulsed with laughter by Mr. Childers, host of the Lord High Admiral's flag and putting to sea to superintend the manoeuvres of a large fleet.

In this Dominion it is estimated the 55 per cent of the people live on 54 per cent of the land area inhabited and contribute 40 per cent of the annual deaths from tuberculosis. The rest of the population, which lives in urban centres, contribute 60 per cent of that death rate. The death rate from tuberculosis is 104 per 100,000, which is too heavy a far.

WHAT DID GLADSTONE SAY IN '78?

Most of us have heard the catch phrase "What did Gladstone say in seventy-eight?" Mr. Julius Hawthorne was present at the meeting at which it was first used, and thus describes the incident:

"I recall a huge hustings in a hall in Birmingham, a very hot day and a densely-crowded hall; no ventilation to speak of; no space for chairs; on the platform an orator doing his best. A voice from the centre of the hall interrupted him. 'What did old Gladstone say a year ago?'"

"The chairman, suave but firm, stepped to the front, while the orator improved the opportunity to swab his neck and forehead. 'Time for questions after the address.'"

"But I want to know, what did old Gladstone say a year ago?" The interrupter, twenty-two at least, was trying to get his coat off, but there wasn't enough elbow room; the chairman grew stern.

"The gentleman is out of order; the police have orders."

"All right for the bobbies, but I ask you, man to man, what did old Gladstone say in seventy-eight?"

"Chairman gave a signal, the audience swayed and murmured; two policemen, at the rear of the hall, set their shoulders to cleave a way through the press, a terrific task, crows and outriders, foot by foot they squeezed their way, the human mass rising, sweating behind them; when at last they reached the offender, he offered no resistance; but then the three of them must return; the heat was terrific; but the British bobbie is irresistible, and amid tumult and confusion they got through with their prisoner. In the ante-room they faced one another, panting, and one of the officers inquired, with natural curiosity:

"What was it Mr. Gladstone said?"

"What to mark, he didn't know, all he wanted was to get hooted!"

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

There was a time in the history of England when the pleasant and profitless pursuits of literature were not considered quite respectable when, as a matter of fact, authors of marked abilities were called "writing fellows," and in order to live upon the most meagre fare those poor fellows were obliged to depend upon the patronage of noble lords and other gentlemen of high degree. Such was the position of the British literary man until brave old Dr. Johnson arose in his might, punctured the system with his fearless and sarcastic pen and established the independence of the literary.

There were not many newspapers in those benighted old days, and such as there were "had to mind their p's and q's." The editors spent a considerable space of time in jail and nearly all the pounds they could scrape together in paying fines. If there were any newspaper men who called themselves journalists, they were even more deeply despised as a class than the literary men. There were "noise so poor as to do them reverence."

Today the business of publishing a newspaper in Britain is one of the most profitable of businesses and the profession of journalism is, at least in some instances, the most profitable of professions. For a wonderful thing has happened in that old Motherland with her history of wonders and wonderful achievements. A great lawyer has renounced his profession to become a journalist, a great statesman has retired from public life to become what some of his social contemporaries of the present day might possibly describe as "A Writing Johnny." Lord Birkenhead, whose career at the Bar was extremely brilliant and extraordinarily remunerative, who had held all the posts of highest importance in the Government, never receiving less than twenty-five thousand dollars a year for his public services, has buried all his prospects and his ambitions in the gloomy precincts of Fleet Street, the place where the newspapers are published.

His Lordship has made all these notable renunciations because he believes there is more money to be made in the profession of journalism than in the profession of the law or in the service of the public, even in the highest positions in the gift of the people. Thus the interested reader will see that there is indeed a great gulf between the days of the immortal Dr. Johnson, and of several other immortals, and the day of Lord Birkenhead. Today, literature, even in its most doubtful form, is respectable, respected and remunerative. Possibly the learned and witty Dean of Christ Church Cathedral might be persuaded to deliver one of his delightful, even if somewhat critical and sarcastic, discourses on the subject of the evolution of the modern newspaper. You see Lord Birkenhead has written books which have been classified as literature. Will the "stuff" he writes for the newspapers be classified as literature too, or condemned to oblivion as the ephemeral production of a day?

However, we do not suppose any such abstract thoughts will trouble the mind of the noble Lord who has become a mere newspaper man. His Lordship, although said to have been a "devil of a fellow" in his youth, is an intensely practical man in middle age. He has scaled all the giddy heights in rapid succession, from a seat in the Imperial House of Commons to the honorable and dignified position of Lord Chancellor of the Realm; and he has found them all vanity in comparison with money. He acorns a salary of five thousand pounds a year as beneath his dignity or the dignity of any other man of energy and talent. He says position cannot be adequately maintained on any such paltry sum. So he has invaded the field of the journalist in the hope (which in his case may be an assurance) that, properly cultivated and adequately fertilized, it will yield a crop worth double five thousand pounds a year.

Thus it would appear that the once despised calling of journalism, like the despised stone in the parable, has become the head of the professional or business corner. But we doubt whether the case of Lord Birkenhead will be accepted as a journalistic standard in either Great Britain or America. The ordinary journalist occupies a position similar to the ordinary prize fighter. He must go out and establish a reputation before he dares apply to the grand prize. The probabilities are that there are a number of writers for the press doing better work than Lord Birkenhead ever will do, but they will not be paid for their work according to the Birkenhead scale. They will have to be content with the established rate of pay. Lord Birkenhead will not be paid for what he actually does. He will be paid for what he has done—that is, for his name and reputation. An interesting feature of the remarkable case of Lord Birkenhead is that he began at the top of the ladder and climbed down. A considerable number of journalists have achieved eminence in public life and in literature, but in every case they began at the bottom of the ladder and climbed up; but the situation has been modified as a result of the new dignity of journalism. The top of the ladder is now the bottom and the bottom the top.

SURVEY OF CITY TO BE CONDUCTED

Government Department at Ottawa to Send Out Expert to Aid Development of Industries Here

Mr. W. J. Boulton, industrial engineer of the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of Interior, Ottawa, has been assigned by the department to make an industrial survey of Victoria and to gather data of the greatest practical value to business enterprise in this community.

This announcement follows a visit here several months ago of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, in which he explained to the Chamber of Commerce the work and policy of his department in connection with industrial surveys and general assistance to Canadian industries.

Throughout Canada experts of the department work in conjunction with boards of trade, chambers of commerce, city councils and similar bodies. Through the correlation of national and local information many concrete cases of new industries and expansion of existing industries throughout Canada have been made possible.

An offer of assistance to Victoria, made by the department, was eagerly accepted and committees have been busy for some time securing the valuable data on industries, operating and possibilities for new industries in preparation of the visit of the Government expert.

PROPOSAL MEETS WITH APPROVAL

Chamber Directors Endorse Project of Establishing a Horseshoe Pitch Here for Visitors

Endorsement of the Tourist Trade Group's proposal for the establishment of a horseshoe pitch in Victoria was given by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting yesterday, and a committee will be appointed to consider ways and means of carrying it out. Mr. Harold D. Patterson and Mr. E. Martin, members of the Chamber's Tourist Trade Group, presented a recommendation of that body to the directors. Mr. Patterson urged that arrangements be commenced for the construction of a shelter for the playing of the horseshoe game, together with a clubhouse for such indoor sports as checkers, chess, etc., to be erected in the downtown district.

Mr. Martin declared that a horseshoe pitch would not only provide suitable entertainment for winter visitors from the Prairies and other parts of the country, but would also encourage tourists to see here permanently. "It would be a good investment for Victoria," he said. The directors felt that the proposal was one which merited support, and will appoint a committee to work on the project.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES

Sir,—Now that the discussion of fire insurance rates has reached a critical point, the enclosed communications on the subject matter, also that dealing with provincial fire insurance, will prove of interest not only to the insuring public of Victoria, but to the whole of the Province.

W. F. FULLERTON,
1342 Pembroke Street, Victoria,
B.C., November 7, 1928.

Victoria, B.C.,
February 14, 1928.
J. C. Pendray, Esq.,
City of Victoria.

Dear Sir,—Re your proposals for reduction of fire insurance rates. You will be interested to know that this question was brought forward by the Fire Wardens in 1917 (caused by the high rates) to have the Government inquire into the feasibility of insuring provincial fire insurance on similar lines as that of New Zealand, conditions in British Columbia being more favorable for success of such an act than in New Zealand.

However, although Vancouver City Council was favorably disposed, and the Government of the day also favorably inclined, the matter was not proceeded with, the fire insurance companies temporarily meeting the situation by a reduction of rates. There is no reason why the question of provincial fire insurance should not be again taken up, after seeing New Zealand's success in saving to the insuring public an amount of over twenty millions of dollars in premiums during the past seventeen years. Enclosed copy of letter to the press in 1917, also New Zealand experience. The inauguration of provincial fire insurance would not necessarily prevent the present insurance companies from doing business.

Yours truly,
W. F. FULLERTON.

The following is from The Daily Colonist, Thursday, August 9, 1917: Provincial Fire Insurance—In his fight for lower fire insurance rates for Victoria and the whole of British Columbia, Alderman Fullerton is working out a scheme for provincial fire insurance here. He is basing his scheme largely on the New Zealand State Fire Insurance Act, concerning which he has been in correspondence for some time. It is likely that the information that he is gathering will be placed at the disposal of the Provincial Government when it accedes to the request of the Vancouver and Victoria City Councils and investigates the fire insurance situation which is said to be responsible for the high rates. Demands have been publicly made that British Columbia institute fire insurance here similar to that of New Zealand.

Study of the New Zealand situation shows that, although the fire insurance board is authorized under the act of 1908 to raise on the credit of the public reserve a capital not exceeding $100,000 it has not been found necessary to realize one cent. Premiums paid in have been ample from the beginning to meet all the losses. Besides meeting all losses, the premiums provide for a credit which goes to the reserve fund, out of which excess profits dividends are paid to actual policyholders at periods of three years. The reserve fund has now accumulated $186,217. The assets of the board amount to $166,880.

Out of an average net yearly income during the last six years of $45,535 and after paying average yearly losses of $28,351, the insurance board has had a yearly average of profits amounting to $19,535. During the last six years the ratio of working expenses to premiums has been 27.3 per cent, and the ratio of losses to premiums 42.1 per cent. The ratio of working expenses to premiums in Victoria is given as 37 per cent.

The New Zealand State Fire Insurance Act provides for the carrying out of the objects by a state fire insurance board consisting of the general manager, the Minister of Finance and two other persons appointed by the Governor. The business of the office is to insure or re-insure against fire all insurable property in New Zealand. For the purpose of reinsurance it may join in with any other insurance company. The act provides that the department has full power to inspect all fire losses and has power for inspection of insurable properties.

British Columbia business of 115 companies during 1915. Net premiums, $3,110,663.86; net losses, $1,284,347.16.

New Zealand State Fire Insurance—Extracts from the yearly report ending December 31, 1925: In 1922 the New Zealand Fire Insurance Act was amended, provision being made that when the funds were sufficient to meet liabilities it

In 1929 Will Decide Rate of Postage to Britain From Canada

MONTREAL, Nov. 9.—The Montreal Gazette carries the following Ottawa special today: "Asked about the possibility of establishing penny postage to Great Britain, Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, said there was disposition in Dominion Government circles toward such a move but before it could be accomplished there would have to be an arrangement for similar treatment from the British Isles, the latter postage from Britain to Canada being also three cents.

"This question, he added, would be dealt with at the next International Postal Congress, which will be held early in 1929 in London, and which he hoped to attend."

WAS PIONEER BUSINESS MAN

Mr. Robert Ward, Founder of Well-Known Business Firm, Dies in Retirement in England

PRESIDENT OF BOARD OF TRADE

Old-timers of the city of Victoria learned yesterday with regret of the death of Mr. Robert Ward, one of this city's early commercial leaders, at his home at Leatherhead, Surrey, England. Mr. Ward, who was seventy-nine years of age, had been living in the Old Country for a number of years.

He came to Victoria in the year 1871, where he joined the staff of Welch, Rithet & Company, afterwards becoming a member of the firm of Stahlensmidt & Ward, who were importers and exporters of general merchandise. Mr. Ward was very largely instrumental in the building up of the salmon canning, fur sealing and foreign lumber business in British Columbia, and his services to this city in its formative period are recalled with enthusiasm by those who knew him.

Mr. Ward built the Temple Building on Lower Fort Street, at the corner of Langley, which is now the commercial office of the B.C. Telephone Company. He was a prominent figure in Board of Trade affairs in Victoria and was president of the local body during the years 1887, 1888, 1890 and 1891. He was also Consul of Sweden and Norway in British Columbia for some twenty years, and a justice of the peace. In the year 1892, Mr. Ward retired from business and went home to England to live. His businesses were later purchased by R. V. Winch & Company, Limited.

Price of Rifle Range Determined by Court

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Instead of $25,000, which it claimed, the corporation of the District of North Vancouver has been allowed by Mr. Justice Audette, in exchequer court, $4,725 as compensation for land expropriated by the Department of Militia and Defence, for a rifle range. The award is the sum which had been offered to the municipality prior to trial, and which was refused.

The acreage is about two miles east of Seymour Creek and extends north into the hills. In addition to lands taken over under the Expropriation Act, from the District of North Vancouver, there is as much as 100 acres, which is privately owned included in the rifle range, and whose value will be determined by Mr. Justice Audette's judgment.

Mr. Thomas F. Gold Turned to Horticulture From Cigar-Making Business Here

The death took place yesterday morning at St. Joseph's Hospital of Mr. Thomas F. Gold, of Keating, at the age of fifty-seven years. Mr. Gold, who was a native of London, came to Victoria about forty years ago, and for a considerable period conducted a cigar business.

Some fifteen years ago he took up land at Keating, and carried on an extensive plantation in strawberries and in loganberries, being a member both of the Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association and of the South Saanich Farmers' Institute. It was, however, in his successful cultivation of grapes, which he was perhaps the leading expert in this locality, that his knowledge of horticulture was displayed, and he produced some wonderfully fine grapes at his farm. Mr. Gold was a member of Park Lodge, No. 1, K. of P. He is survived by his widow, residing at Keating, one son, Thomas F. Gold at home, and one daughter, Mrs. D. H. Robertson, 645 Michigan Street.

Straith, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, extended the hearty welcome of the organization to a number of new members, at a dinner meeting of the chamber, held in the Chamber of Commerce dining-room Thursday. The recent addition of new members brings the membership roll up to 138 names.

Mr. Straith said that the Junior Chamber had been very active in the interests of Victoria lately, and he felt that new members with new ideas would be a great asset to the organization.

The guests of the chamber included Mr. J. P. Fowler, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in this city, and president of the senior chamber; Mr. Fred M. McGregor, chairman of the membership committee, and Mr. Herbert Anson, a director of the senior group. Messrs. Don Cameron and Len Acres contributed a number of lively musical numbers to the evening. The Christmas festivities to be staged here by the Canadian Pacific Railway will receive every possible assistance from the chamber. The Christmas dinner, which was held here, has been very cordially received.

Among the new members who were welcomed were Messrs. F. Hunter, C. A. G. Stewart, James Pilgrim, James McMartin, W. D. Todd, Alex. Bell, Reginald T. Chave, Frank Timmins, Harry Curry, Walter Spry, and G. S. Marchant.

POTATO MARKETING SITUATION BETTER

Minister of Agriculture Returns From Pourparlers With Potato Growers and Dealers

Hon. W. Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture, who has returned from the Mainland, had several conferences with farmers in the Lower Mainland during his absence. The potato marketing situation was looked into by him with more than ordinary interest, and he was pleased to find that things appeared to be working out towards a satisfactory settlement of the difficulties that have been confronting the growers.

The Minister says that it appears that Colonel A. W. McLean, the newly-appointed controller, is making good progress along the line of bringing things to a working basis, and the outlook is quite promising.

As far as he was able to ascertain, the dealers and the growers were in general showing a strong disposition to fall in line with the plan, and the prospects are that affairs will be straightened out without much trouble.

HON. R. H. POOLEY READY TO HELP

Attorney-General Receives Communication Regarding Liquor Enforcement

Hon. R. H. Pooley has received from the city of New Westminster a communication signed by the city clerk in which the suggestion is made that the Provincial Police can greatly assist the police of the Mainland city in keeping out illegal liquor supplies.

There is also suggested by the chief of police of New Westminster in a letter to the mayor of that city that if the source of unsealed liquor were shut off it would be a great help in enforcing the Liquor Act. The Attorney-General is prepared to consider these suggestions with all others that come to him. He expressed a little feeling of curiosity as to when these suggested moves first became manifest among the authorities of the city of New Westminster.

He points out that the expressed desire that the policy that has been pursued with regard to law enforcement in New Westminster may be manifested in other parts of the province, by calling attention to the fact that the Provincial Police launched a clean-up policy in the riding of Esquimalt, which is represented by the Attorney-General himself, so that there could not be said to be any discrimination shown.

VANCOUVER WHEAT BOUND FOR INDIA

First Cargo Leaves for Calcutta Aboard S.S. Larchbank—Crop Failure Makes Market

VANCOUVER, Nov. 9.—Wheat, for the first time in history, will find its way into India from Vancouver when the British steamer Larchbank docks at Calcutta next month. The ship is loaded with 284,725 bushels of No. 3 Northern. In December a second shipment of 235,000 bushels will leave Vancouver for India on the steamer Shakespeare. Both ships are under charter to Louis, Dreyfus & Company.

J. P. MacLuska, the Dreyfus local representative, explained that the anomaly of shipping wheat to a country which normally exports grain to Europe is a result of the crop failure in India this year. The wheat carried by the Larchbank and Shakespeare will be mixed with wheat from Australia and the Argentine. It will be milled in India.

ALASKA'S PHANTOM CITY

The silent city of Alaska, the famous mirage which appears occasionally above the great Muir glacier, was observed again recently by tourists from the deck of the steamship Aleutian. The phantom of the air looked much like an ancient fortified city, with spires and towers, hanging some distance above the glacier. The singular phenomenon is believed to be caused by the distortion of icy pinnacles and peaks.

The appearance of the Alaskan mirage is always preceded by the forming of a streak of mist along the horizon, where probably two air currents meet, due to condensation of atmospheric moisture by the chill of the sea. The snow apparently dissolves, and the magic picture begins to lift itself in the distance, with all the formation, like a motion picture film being focused on the screen.

Once last season the phantom reversed and the strange image appeared upside down, the tips of the towers and the minarets looking as if they were dipping into the sea.

MESSAGE TO LEGION SENT BY GENERAL

Sir Arthur Currie Addresses Comrades on Armistice Day Memories and on Result of War

HOPE FOUGHT FOR TO BE REALIZED

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—"Armistice Day will ever be to us all a day of cherished recollection and of unimpaired pride, and on this anniversary we all live again with our memories," writes Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., former commander of the Canadian Corps and president of the Canadian Legion in the British Empire Service League, in an Armistice Day message addressed "to all my comrades of the Canadian Legion."

Sir Arthur is at present in Europe, recovering from a severe illness. "We recall the golden friendships, the gallant courage, the splendid service, the steadfast ideals of the war days and our picture of those vanished hours remains unblurred with the passing years," continues Sir Arthur. "We did not seek for war for its own sake. We had no illusions about mythical glamour, its horrors, its heartaches and its tragedies. But throughout all the incidents of its seemingly endless nights and days we were united in one hope, which shone steadily like a star through all its clouded agonies, a hope and a belief that we were fighting in a war that would forever put an end to war. Today, that hope, which then seemed so distant of fulfillment, is nearing its realization. The nations are thinking at last, as they never thought before, in terms of peace. There is a stirring in the trees, for the gentle wind of peace is blowing throughout the world. This is the most gratifying fact of this anniversary. That peace on earth may be finally established must be our labor, for that is the vision for which our comrades died."

CREED OF LEGION

"In our own household, we of the Legion must continue to the end to maintain the ideals and principles which strengthened us through all the trying hours of the war days—tolerance, unity, devotion to duty, justice for all and the bearing of one another's burdens. We must continue to be, as in the battle hours, not of the East or the West, not of one race or another, but united Canadians with a common objective, the happiness and progress of our country. Each Armistice Day sees vacant places, each year our ranks grow smaller, for to our dwindling army there come no recruits. But those of us who remain must renew again on this anniversary our sacred pledge: 'That we will keep the faith with our dead comrades, that with hope of peace on earth may at last be fulfilled.'"

Ship Makes Port With Rudder Gone

SEATTLE, Nov. 9.—With a jury rig made from the vessel's boom, the schooner Arcade arrived in Seattle today from the fishing banks with catches of halibut, sable fish and cod. The Arcade lost her rudder during a battle with a bad gale on November 4 off Cape Cook on the West Coast of Vancouver Island. The damage delayed the vessel three days in reaching port.

Splendid Recipe To Stop A Cough That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any drugstore can supply you with 25¢ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 10¢ bottle and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's so trouble all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it. It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs that usually follow the "flu," are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Silken Scarfs of Autumn Vintage

THAT disagreeable scratchy feel of woolen about the collar, or the distressing knowledge that a very lovely and soft fur collar is being subjected to too-close contact with the flesh, resulting in soil and wear, are two practical reasons for the continued appeal of the alken scarf.

Exponents of the Autumn scarf reveal a fondness for bold patterns in line with the modern trend. Colors may go as far as to be subdued, but they are the more apparent because of the splashing designs.

If you like but a small scarf, Lanvin's triangle hand-painted on crepe de Chine in high shades is an excellent choice. This may be worn in matters of attire is certain to be very adaptable to feminine dress. The great big square scarf of heavy silk in large designs and striking colors is a Fall fancy. Any lass may flit one without conscience from her brother and appear all the smarter.

These huge squares are particularly nice for wear under the utility coat, folded in half as a triangle. Since plaids are very much the vogue, the large silk square in a novelty weave of glistening, sparkling texture makes a decidedly rich scarf to adorn the tailleur.

Many of the Autumn scarfs are considered safe in the tubing process. Naturally, washing any piece of silk

Women's Institutes of Vancouver Island

PARKSVILLE.
The regular meeting of the Parksville Women's Institute was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday, November 7, Mrs. Wilson presiding. The business for the month was quickly dealt with, so that the lesson in basket making, given by Mrs. Aldorf, of Cobble Hill, could commence. Mrs. Aldorf, to illustrate her lesson, made a very beautiful tray, and all members present voiced their appreciation of Mrs. Aldorf's work and her method of teaching. The hope was expressed that another lesson would be given at some future date. A most enjoyable tea was served by Mrs. Robert Price and Mrs. McClellan. Mrs. Hewitt took charge of the members' stall.

WEST SAANICH.
The fortnightly card party was held under the auspices of the West Saanich Women's Institute on Wednesday evening with ten tables of cards. Two tables tied for second, and after a play-off the winners were Mrs. Lawrie, Councilor Hagan, Mrs. E. T. Lawrie and Mr. R. Hall. Refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Buckle and Mrs. Anderson.

Wace, president, was in the chair, and there were eleven members present. The institute decided to allot $40 for the maintenance of a patient at the Solarium. The meeting also agreed that the institute would be responsible for the supper at the Boy Scouts' entertainment on November 23. Another request that the institute take charge of the supper and the concert to be given by the three schools in December was granted. It is expected that members will attend the service in the hall on Armistice Day, and arrangements have been made for a wreath of red poppies for the War Memorial. Tea hostesses were Mrs. Samuelson and Mrs. E. G. West.

Speaks on Bunyan.
"Bunyan's Contribution to Religion" was the subject of an address given by Rev. W. A. Guy at the regular meeting of the Women's Educational Auxiliary of the United Church on Thursday afternoon in the Metropolitan lecture room. Not many men, said the speaker exercised three hundred years after their own lifetime a greater influence than when they lived and walked among their fellows. But Bunyan had.

The auxiliary has decided to hold a sale of home cooking in the basement of Spencer's store on Saturday morning, November 17, and also to hold a special Christmas tea on Tuesday, December 11, in the Y.W.C.A.

Fifteen Hundred Attend Annual City Police Ball

For the fifteenth successive year the Victoria Police Mutual Benefit Association held its annual ball last night, when a crowd numbering 1,500 people thronged the ballroom, palm room and rotunda of the Empress Hotel. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and Miss Mackenzie, accompanied by Captain W. Hobart Melson and Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn, led the grand march, the National Anthem being struck up as they entered the ballroom.

Until an early hour this morning the dancing continued, and guests proclaimed the affair one of the most successful ever given by the association.

The entertainment which was held in the hall of the First United Church last night under the auspices of the Onwag Young Men's Bible Class turned out to be an unqualified success in every sense of the word. In the first place the hall was packed to its utmost capacity. In the second place the audience, which was a very appreciative one, showed its enjoyment of the programme by its silence during each item and its hearty applause at the end of every performance.

Among the more outstanding successes were Chopin's "Lithuanian Song," sung by Miss Edith Howell, and "The Second Minuet," a musical monologue by Miss Ethel Begwood Bale. Mr. Llewellyn Jones has an excellent tenor voice. His rendering of "Love, Could I Only Tell Thee," was particularly fine. Mrs. Millhouse sang four numbers, which were all very well received, and Mr. Francis Gratton, who has a lovely tone on the violin, played several first class selections. As an accompanist and also as a pianoforte soloist Miss Dorothy Morton played beautifully, as did Miss Eleanor Barfoot, L.R.A.M.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET.
The Young People's Club, of the First United Church, held its weekly meeting Monday night. Rev. J. G. O. Bonpas gave an illustrated lecture on "A Globe-Encircling Air Trip." Visiting the United Church Mission Fields. The audience was carried through the sugar fields of Trinidad, the rice fields of Japan and the heathen temples of China. With the aid of colored slides, the lecturer, who is a returned missionary, described vividly the great possibilities for Christianizing the natives to be found in these fields. The club invites Victoria's young people, especially Normal students, to attend its meetings.

Among the guests were deputations from the Vancouver and Seattle police departments, and many well-known figures in social and business circles were present.

The committee, headed by Chief Fry, had spared no effort in the arrangements for the ball, and the artistic and effective decorations were in the hands of Inspector Boulton. Sergeants Heatley and Florence, with Constable Bishop as secretary, formed the committee itself. The programme cards of the police ball this year were unique, being the front of a clever drawing of a policeman on the back of which were the dance numbers and tunes.

Among the prominent guests were the Honorable the Premier and Mrs. Toimie, His Worship the Mayor and Mrs. Pendray, Dr. J. D. MacLean and Mrs. MacLean, Attorney-General Pooley and Mrs. Pooley, Col. J. H. McMullin and Miss McMullin, Inspector Parsons, and Police Commissioners Stenland and White, and Mrs. Stenland and Mrs. White.

TO UNVEIL PLAQUE AT HISTORIC SITE

Miss Finlayson, Daughter of Hudson's Bay Factor, Invited to Officiate at Ceremony

Next Wednesday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, Miss Finlayson, daughter of one of the first Hudson's Bay factors resident in the old Fort which occupied part of the area now enclosed by Government and Bastion Streets, has been invited to unveil the Historical Association's bronze plaque which is being set up on the outer wall of the Miller, Court & Company Building, at the corner of Government and Bastion Streets.

The occasion is to be in the nature of a formal ceremony, at which His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will be present, together with Premier Toimie, who will deliver an address. Mayor Carl Pendray, members of the City Council and Chamber of Commerce, present and former Hudson's Bay Company officials and representatives of the Historical Association and other organizations interested in the preservation of historic landmarks.

The plaque in this instance has been presented to the Historical Association by Miller, Court & Company, and Mr. W. S. Miller, president of the company, will come over from Vancouver in order to participate in the proceedings, the details of the arrangements for which are being carried out by Mr. C. C. Pemberton.

It is anticipated that many Victorians will attend the ceremony, and in order to make the conditions as pleasant as possible for everyone concerned, traffic will be temporarily diverted from the Government and Bastion Streets corner.

The plaque was executed by Mr. Norman M. Simister, from the design of Mr. A. Williamson, and contains the following inscription: "This tablet marks the site of the bastion which stood at the northeast corner of Port Victoria. The Fort was erected by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1843."

Below are the words: "Erected by Miller, Court & Company for the British Columbia Historical Association, A.D. 1928."

MINISTER INVITED TO OFFICIATE

Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, is being invited to attend the formal opening of the new technical school in Vancouver. The event will take place on November 30 at 10 o'clock. The trustees of the school have decided to entertain the Minister of Education at dinner on that evening, and to have him perform the ceremony of formally opening the institution.

Among those to be invited to the ceremony will be Dr. J. D. MacLean, Mr. John Kyle, organizer of technical education; Mayor Louis D. Taylor, Mayor-elect W. H. Malkin, the trustees of the three amalgamated boards, the trustees-elect of the new city board, and service and other city organizations.

A gentleman visiting some relatives in Scotland was persuaded to try a game of golf. At the first stroke he aimed a terrific blow at the ball, scattering the turf to right and left.

"What have I hit?" he asked, looking round for the result.

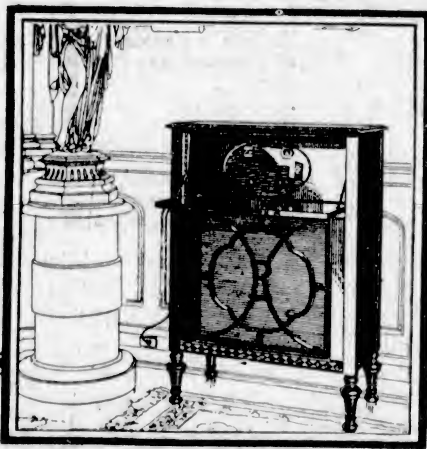

"Scotland, sir," answered the caddy.

ANCIENT KYOTO CAPITAL AGAIN AT CORONATION

Austere Palaces, Shrines

Splendid Setting for Enthronement of Emperor

DANCE FESTIVAL AFTER CEREMONY

By THOMAS COMPTON
(Copyright, 1928, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Though the Emperor of Japan regularly holds his court in the Imperial Palace of Tokyo, it is to Kyoto that he and his suit repair for the enthronement ceremonies. Kyoto witnesses the formal accession of rulers of the Empire and, until the funeral of the last Emperor, was also the scene of their obsequies.

For the lover of the picturesque it is fortunate that the politics of the Land of the Rising Sun brought about the transfer of the seat of government from the western to the eastern city. The complicated paraphernalia of a modern constitutional monarchy would have little to do with the ancient capital and its surroundings, but after the death of Kwammu Kyoto outdid Nara and the court became dissolute and effete.

The Mikado of old ruled from Kyoto during that period known as the Heian—Peaceful—Era. In order to put a halt to the gradual decline of the court, the Emperor Kwammu moved his headquarters from Nara to Kyoto—then, as now, the centre of the Zen-Buddhists in the Empire. So long as his energy was behind the direction of affairs a new life showed in the changed surroundings, but after the death of Kwammu Kyoto outdid Nara and the court became dissolute and effete.

Kwammu chose well when he built his new palace and planned the city to grow up about it. Between low, pine-clad, shrine-brown hills and the Kamo River he laid out broad thoroughfares, radiating from the palace after the form of the brocade design on a priest's robe.

In Kyoto a Shinto court flourished too well in a Buddhist setting, and in this lies the reason for the wealth of atmosphere and tradition which go to make Kyoto one of the most interesting spots in the world.

PRIMITIVE RELIGION
Shintoism is the primitive religion of the Empire, antedating Buddhism by centuries. As a religion it is almost unique, in that it has no acknowledged articles of faith. Intertwined with its pantheistic elements is the little-understood cult of ancestor worship which has done more than anything else toward keeping the throne of Japan in one family through 124 successive rulers.

To the temples, pagodas, shrines, avenues of Buddhas, sacred groves, stone lanterns and massive gates of Kyoto, Kwammu added a Shinto palace and the beginnings of a city. The palace, key of the design, is in itself something quite without parallel. As the Son of the Gods the Mikado is the owner of all property within his realm. With power of life and death and arbitrary confiscation it was too easy for him to make a despotism of the throne. Everything at his command, display by an Emperor could mean nothing. The Palace, known as the Sento, was built with the governing of its construction and by its erection a precedent, since followed, was established in the matter of Imperial residences.

The lines of the buildings within the Sento Palace are entirely Shinto. Plain, unvarnished and unpainted wood and whitewashed walls are surrounded by temple-roofed roofs. About the walls are only one story and, after a tour of the Kyoto Temples, the whole suggests nothing so much as the monastery of some exceptionally austere sect.

The two central buildings of the Sento Palace are the Seiryoden—a reception hall of ten large rooms which are arranged to be thrown together on state occasions—where the Imperial Shrine will rest during the Enthronement Week—and the Shishinden—a larger hall surrounded by a massive roof—where the ritual of November 10 will take place.

It has never been considered necessary for the Emperor to be particularly strongly guarded, so the Sento estate, of about 250 acres, is surrounded only by a low stone wall broken here and there for entrance. Before the Shishinden is the colossal Imperial Portal used only by a reigning Emperor. The courts are of coarse sand, interspersed with stone walks. Within these grounds are erected, specially for the occasion, the Daijoshu Halls for the Grand Thanksgiving which are used during the night of November 14 and thereafter solemnly burned.

A LAVISH DISPLAY
But one does not have to look in vain for lavish display in the old capital. There was no divine influence at work here, as in the gun and the maintenance of power in the various families which held this office depended largely on the extent to which they could impress supporters. In the Nijo Palace expense was not spared and every penny laid out appeared to best advantage.

Surrounded by frowning walls overlooking a deep moat and kept fast by huge iron gates exquisitely wrought, the Shogun's residence is a vast treasure house designed by the foremost artists of successive eras and decorated so that there could be no possible error made in the matter of the wealth and power of its owner.

To this palace the celebrations will be transferred after the main rites are completed. Here the Emperor will give the two banquets which form part of the official rejoicings connected with his accession and here also will be danced the sacred and historical masques which for centuries have been reserved for these occasions.

Later and far from less in importance, Kyoto contains the mausoleums of former Emperors. These quiet, simple shrines seen in no way different from any of the other innumerable places of worship scattered through the Kyoto hills, but their significance during the Accession year is tremendous. Before their altars regular services are performed throughout the year. When the date of the enthronement ceremony is fixed the ancestors are advised of it before the public announcement can be made. On arrival in Kyoto the reigning Emperor visits these sanctuaries before he is crowned. At intervals during the week he repairs in state to certain of them and reports as to the progress of events.

For it is rather as the temporary representative of the line that Hirohito will govern their people and in caring for the affairs of his subjects he confers with his predecessors and accepts their advice in all matters. This is the central idea of the Shinto succession, the core of which is to be found in the old Enthronement City and ancient capital of Kyoto.

FESTIVAL OPENS
With the completion of the formal accession rites, the Grand Thanksgiving, the Imperial suite moves from the Sento Palace to the Nijo, or Shogunate, Palace. The ancient rites of the coronation having been accomplished, the Shinto halls witness the festival which follows.

state banquet commences. To this affair 1500 guests have been invited and they will be served in Japanese style. The great hall of the Sento Palace takes on something of its old atmosphere on this occasion. Within walls on which storks, grotesque tigers and decorative peacocks strut against a golden background, the nobility of the Empire, in national costumes, partake of courses prepared in accordance with historical rules. The tables are set with native implements and decorated with artificial flowers fashioned from precious metals and stones. By the side of each cover rests a silver vase, decorated with the Imperial crest, the product of a famous workshop in Akiha, a gift from the Emperor.

During this banquet the famous Bugaku or old court dances, are performed. Before the date upon which the Emperor dines alone two of these pantomimes are presented during the afternoon. Two more are performed in the evening, the casual observer the Bugaku are apt to suggest little. In the main the movements are slow and, to the eye of the uninitiated, meaningless.

To the historian and student of things Japanese they contain a wealth of significance. Reserved for enthronement occasions, these dances are over a thousand years old and were obviously brought from the Asian mainland during a period in which the Land of the Dragon Fly, as Japan was called in those distant days, is believed to have been entirely isolated from the world.

About fifty Bugaku pieces have been preserved through the centuries, but of these only a few are connected with accession celebrations. The company maintained for their performance is something of a hereditary guild corporation which jealously guards the intricate details of music and action going to make up the programme. About thirty male dancers and fifty musicians are maintained in a special department of state to perpetuate these masques, perform them in season and drill the chosen few who, in accordance with ancient tradition, are elected to participate in certain of the dances.

STAGE SIMPLE AFFAIR
The stage for these dances is a simple platform raised a few feet from the floor of the hall, covered with a green cloth and surrounded by lacquered railings. Dancers reach it from either side by step and on either side of the entrance pieces of the orchestra—conspicuous among them being the enormous special Bugaku drum—are ranged.

The first dance to be presented is the Kume, or warrior dance. Four participants, dressed in scarlet robes, brandishing swords, advance and retreat in the manner of combats. The peculiar figure of the Kume is that the warriors engaged wear large padded boots obviously of Mongolian pattern and only used in Japan in connection with this dance. The performance celebrates the victories of Jimmu-tenno, first Emperor of Japan, over his enemies during the period he was engaged in establishing his empire.

This Emperor is also remembered in the first programme by the Gosechi—Five Seats of Clothing dance. The performers on this occasion are selected from the daughters of members of the House of Peers, chosen months before the event and carefully trained for their single performance by the director of the Bugaku company. It is said that Jimmu was a Koto virtuoso. Legend says that he played one afternoon the national instrument so beautifully a goddess descended from the upper plane in a luminous cloud and danced to the strains. The peers' daughters go through the same evolutions as the muses, the covering of their dance being the covering of their eyes with the flowing sleeves of their garments five times. The costume for this dance is particularly beautiful. Over scarlet skirts is draped a loose green robe with wide sleeves which are lined with layers of different colored materials. Their hair is let down for the dance to complete the effect of ancient style.

The most peculiar of the Bugaku performances is the Hassen, which is undoubtedly of South Sea origin. The dancers in this number wear special masks from the pierced lips of which bells hang. As the Japanese have never pierced their lips, this, beyond a doubt, is the result of some Southern influence. The costumes for the Hassen are of sea blue embroidered with fish. Over these miniature fishing nets are hung at the corners of which small weights hang and swing with the movements of the dance which are intended to simulate the motion of waves.

If the Hassen can be regarded as a Thanksgiving dance for the products of the sea, it belongs in the same section of the Bugaku as the Fuzoku, which deals with the rice harvest. Dressed in white brocade decorated with rice stalks, the planting, growth, transplanting and harvesting of the rice crop is represented in this masque, said to be as old as any of the Bugaku, which means it has come down through at least a thousand years.

The second Imperial banquet follows two days later, and is served in the style of the Occident to 300 guests. Again Imperial gifts are distributed, and on this occasion the Emperor attends in his military uniform as a grand field marshal, wearing his modern decorations. Simultaneous with this, in the open, the public is invited to feast with the Emperor in an enormous plain beneath the pines of Sento. This feast, the Japanese equivalent of the distribution of largesse and centuries.

keeping of open house for tenants, is the occasion for bestowing tokens of Imperial approval upon selected recipients. Fidelity being regarded by the Japanese as the virtue beyond all others, people of all classes who have given examples of this quality—children toward their parents, servants to their masters, and wives to their husbands—are honored by gifts of memorial sake cups embellished with the Imperial crest, commemorative medals and money.

With the ending of this second series of feasts the Emperor's visit to Kyoto finishes. Before leaving his old capital he presents himself at the shrines of his ancestors and reports the completion of his enthronement rites. Thereafter the court returns to Tokyo, and Kyoto relapses again into the quiet which has been its greatest charm for centuries.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

The Boy and the Gun

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Rusty the Fox Squirrel had left behind him the lake on which he had had his great adventure. He was still hunting for a place where he would be promise of food enough to last all winter. He was getting tired of traveling. He had had enough of it. But so far he had been able to find the food supply. So there was nothing to do but to keep on. It certainly had been a bad year for nuts over a great deal of territory.

One morning Rusty came to a little group of trees. It was a little grove. There were hickory trees among them and he found a few scattered hickory nuts. They were the first hickory nuts he had found since he started on his journey. Perhaps you can guess how good they tasted to him. He was sitting up in a tree eating one and so happy that he had forgotten everything but his enjoyment. He didn't hear dry leaves below him rustling. He didn't hear the snap of a dead twig. Spang! Something knocked a nut right out of his paws. Rusty had such a fright that he nearly fell from his perch. Yes, sir, he nearly fell from his perch. Spang! Something struck the branch Rusty was sitting on. He sprang to the trunk of the tree and ran around to the other side. Then he peeped around cautiously.

Down below was a boy. In his hands was a gun. It wasn't one of those dreadful guns that spit fire and make a loud noise, but it shot bullets just the same. It was an air gun—the kind of a gun that boys delight to have.

The boy was peering up excitedly. When he saw Rusty peeping at him from behind the trunk of the tree, the boy took careful aim. Spang! The bullet hit the tree right under Rusty's nose. You should have seen him dodge back. This time he scrambled higher and tried to hide around below. Every time he caught a glimpse of Rusty he would put that gun to his shoulder. Spang! He would come a shiver. Rusty! He tried another tree. The boy aimed the dreadful rifle followed him. You see, in none of those trees was there a hollow big enough for a Fox Squirrel to hide in. The only thing he could do was to keep the trunk of the tree between him and the boy with that horrid gun.

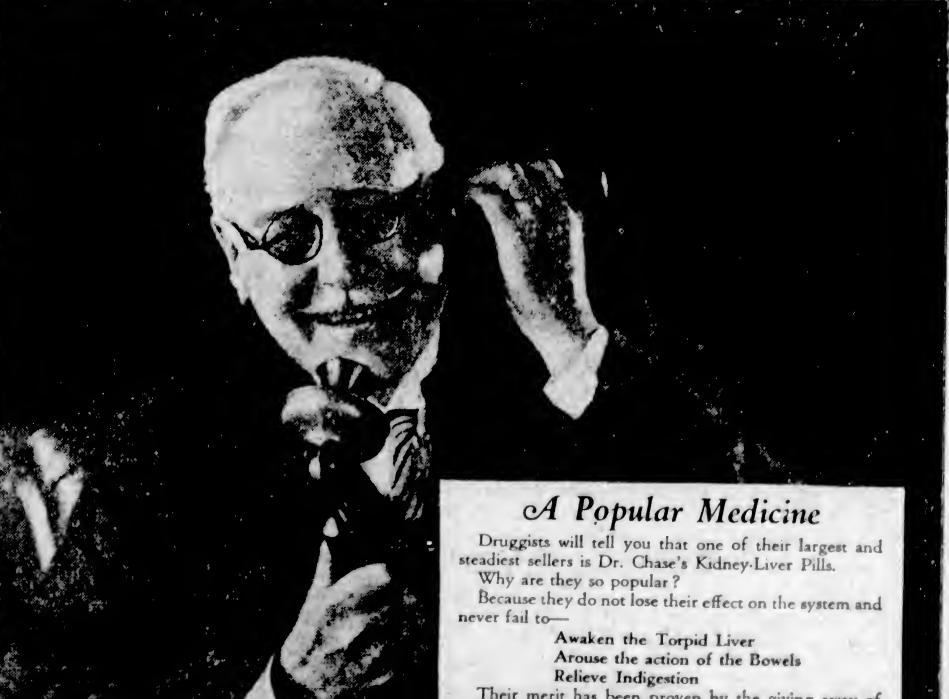

Down below was a boy in his hands was a gun

At last, when Rusty was near the top of the tallest tree, one of those bullets hit him. My, how it did sting! It tore his coat so that he bled just a little. It wasn't anything serious but it was painful. That is the trouble with those air rifles. There was one chance that at that distance a bullet would hit Rusty, but bullets could sting and hurt at that distance, as Rusty had already found out.

After that, Rusty was more careful than ever to keep the trunk of the tree between him and the boy. He had to peek around to keep watch of that boy and, of course, every time he did this he took some chance. One of those bullets might hit him in the eye. Poor Rusty! He was badly frightened. The place where he had been hit ached. He couldn't see any chance to escape. It really was very dreadful for Rusty.

Meanwhile, the boy was having a wonderful time. He imagined himself a mighty hunter. Every time he made a good shot, he was mightily pleased with himself. Yet that boy wasn't a hard-hearted boy. He didn't understand. It didn't occur to him that a squirrel would feel pain just as he would. He didn't think of Rusty as suffering dreadful fright as well as pain. He himself was having sport and that was all he thought of.

CROWN RETAINS FINER METALS

PRIVY COUNCIL GIVES DECISION ON HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY CLAIM

Ownership of Gold and Silver Under Lands Owned by Company Held to Be Transferred

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Officials at the London headquarters of the Hudson's Bay Company today said they were not prepared yet to make any comment on the Privy Council's decision of the company's appeal against the decision that precious metals in land occupied by its trading posts belong to the Crown. Sir Charles Vincent, Sale, governor is at present in Canada. Shares of the Hudson's Bay Company on the Stock Exchange were unaffected by the judgment. In fact they turned a little on reports of sales of land by the company.

THE DECISION
Gold and silver in Hudson's Bay Company lands is owned by the Crown in the right of the Dominion Government.

The judicial committee of the Privy Council today dismissed with costs an appeal of the company from the Canadian Supreme Court decision in favor of the Dominion.

The Hudson's Bay Company received a charter in the days of King Charles II, which gave it absolute ownership of a vast territory around Hudson Bay. A few years after Canada became a Dominion, however, the company surrendered this northern empire in return for Western settlement lands.

The company then claimed that though it surrendered ownership of the territory, it retained ownership of precious metals in the lands occupied by the company at its trading posts and adjoining the trading posts. The Supreme Court unanimously rejected this claim and was confirmed by the Privy Council today.

The Privy Council expressed the opinion that the answers given by the Canadian Supreme Court to the agreed statement of facts and questions were correct in every case. The Supreme Court decided that the ownership of the land and metals was in the same proprietary title that was surrendered by the company.

POPULATION HAS BEEN DOUBLED

Peace River Shows Wonderful Increase in One Year's Time

Mr. Fred Fraser, Government agent at Peace Coulee, says the wheat yield of the British Columbia section of the Peace River district will be short of expectations. He places the yield at from 200,000 to 250,000 bushels. This is about 250,000 bushels short of the estimate made in the Spring, but the district can count upon 500,000 bushels next season.

Despite the shortage in the wheat crop the past season witnessed wonderful strides in development and settlement. The population nearly doubled during the year, and the present prospect for the ensuing year is even brighter. As a matter of fact a large number of intending settlers are coming into the district as the harvest work on the outside is finished up.

The wheat crop is harvested and threshed, and while the yield is down 30 per cent from that of the previous year the wheat is grading much higher. As the result of the open season more land has been prepared for Spring seeding than in any previous year, the increase being fully 100 per cent. With an ordinary season the Peace River section of the Port of George district will be second to none in Western Canada next year.

Residents of the district are greatly interested in the projected automobile road to connect the Peace River district with Prince George by way of the Pine Pass, he says in the course of an interview. This is regarded as of more immediate importance than the long-deferred railway connection, and there is a feeling that the people of Peace River, in their preference to the automobile road, have neglected the northern part of their district, which is much richer in resources than the districts to the south of them.

AMUSEMENTS

DOMINION Nigel de Brulier, who appears as William, Prince of Orange, in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "Two Lovers," co-starring Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, at the Dominion Theatre, has a record of some of the most distinguished character achievements in motion pictures. He has appeared in leading parts in "The Gaucho," "Ben Hur," "Wings," "Surrender," "The Three Musketeers" and "Peer Gynt." A veteran of the silent screen, Mr. De Brulier appeared in the first four-reel picture ever made, a Selig version of "Robin Hood."

VARIETY Madge Bellamy will bring something entirely new to local theatre patrons when she opens today at the Variety Theatre for one day in "Very Confidential." This is a Fox picture, directed by James Tinling, and it is said to contain one of the most thrilling automobile races filmed in a mountain background.

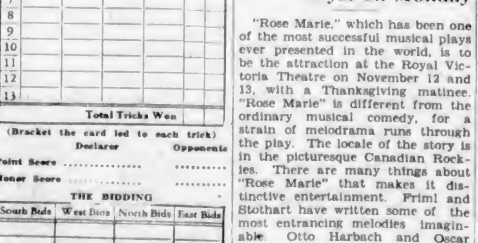

COLUMBIA "Ramona," showing at the Columbia Theatre for the last time today, is said to be one of the biggest attractions on the screen for the forthcoming season. Helen Hunt Jackson, author of "Ramona," wrote the story with as deliberate a purpose as did the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In fact, historians refer to "Ramona" as the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of the Indians.

World's Greatest of Musical Comedies at Royal on Monday

"Rose Marie," which has been one of the most successful musical plays ever presented in the world, is to be the attraction at the Royal Victoria Theatre on November 12 and 13, with a Thanksgiving matinee. "Rose Marie" is different from the ordinary musical comedy, for a strain of melodrama runs through the play. The locale of the story is in the picturesque Canadian Rockies. There are many things about "Rose Marie" that makes it distinctive entertainment. First and foremost, it has a strong supporting cast in this modern expose of the convict labor system.

WELSH BARDIC LEADER COMING

Rev. B. Ceitho-Davies, Well-Known Welsh Poet, Bard, Will Visit Victoria

The officers of the Victoria Cymrodorion Society announce that Major Rev. B. Ceitho-Davies, whose approaching arrival in the city was recently announced, will reach Victoria this week-end from Seattle, and preach in St. David's Hall, 1414 Douglas Street, at 3 p.m. on Sunday, November 11. The Society of Welsh Chorus will assist.

This well-known chaplain, who served with the "Old Contemptibles" and throughout the war, is bringing official greetings from the management committee of the Royal National Eisteddfod of Wales. He also carries letters of introduction from well-known people, including Right Hon. David Lloyd George.

His church activities include the offices of past moderator of two prebys of the Presbyterian Church of Wales—Pembroke and Monmouth. This is a unique distinction.

He is equally well known in bardic and literary circles, being an active and prominent member of the Gorsedd and a past literary secretary of the Royal National Eisteddfod of Wales. This visit to Canada follows a successful preaching and lecturing tour of Australia and the United States.

It is presumed that he will be much in demand during his stay in Victoria, which may probably last about ten days. Already arranged is an address to be delivered to the members of the Pro Patria Branch of the Canadian Legion at their general meeting on Tuesday, November 13 at 8 o'clock in their club-room, 828 Courtney Street, while in Victoria he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Lewis, Wilmet Place.

"BARBERRY BUSH"

One Girl's Marriage Problems
By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Barbara was silent for a long while, and Link mended the fire, whose crackling flames lighted the big room far more than the feeble candlelight could.

"Barb?"

"If—under the circumstances, you could steel yourself to take Marianne quite simply at her word the next time you quarrel—"

She paused, thinking it out.

"Impossible," he said. "The next morning, or the same afternoon, there is always a note. Once she came to the office."

"You could go away for several months," Barbara suggested, after a thought. "Your father would certainly make it easy for you. Ben Hudson, from your office, is always going to Kansas City or Los Angeles or somewhere. But the point is," the girl added, smiling and shaking her head, "have you character enough, before you go, to tell her and Inez and your father and Lucy, and so on, that it's over—definitely done with. I shouldn't have to sneak away, leaving everything half settled. Barbara confessed, laughing. "And then it'd be all to do when you came back. And by that time she might have the date set, and the trousseau all ready!"

"I know," Link agreed with a heavy sigh. "It isn't that I'm not fond of her," he went on suddenly. "I'm awfully sorry for her. I think she's had a rotten deal. She's affectionate—or at least she loves affection—"

"And beautiful," Barbara prompted.

"And beautiful. But—but this whole damned mess makes me feel so confused, as if I was acting in the dark, and being fooled like a kid," Link confessed hoarsely. "I don't know why the judge refused her her decree in September. I know I followed her up to town once, in August. I think this was, and found her having tea with Fox Madison at the Palace."

"Well, no harm in that! Barbara laughed.

"No, I suppose not," he said discontentedly. "They said they'd met by accident, but afterward something she let slip showed that they'd gone in together on the train. I wish to God she wasn't always scheming and framing up perfectly simple things that don't matter a rap anyway!"

"Why don't you see her tonight?"

"She's in town. She went in yesterday," Link interrupted.

"Perhaps she and Barry are having tea together today, Barbara suggested, and laughed wholesomely.

"The man looked at her quickly.

"Wouldn't you mind?"

"Mind their having tea? Barbara said, and laughed again.

"No, I trust people. But, per-japs," Barbara conceded, "if I loved some one who was always deceiving me, and teasing me, and humiliating me before other persons—I don't mean Marianne, of course!—she broke off, in quick apology.

"But Marianne is something like that," Link admitted gloomily.

"Well, girls of that type think that shows their power over men," Barbara explained quite simply. "They consider it a proof of being charming, I think. It always seemed to me silly," she added. "I would just as soon annoy my father or mother, or Amy, as tease Barry that way. Listen!" she broke off suddenly, with a brightening face. "Here's Barry!"

The door opened, upon a draught of cold air, and muffled and coated, carrying a milk pail, Barry came in, arms tight about his bulky wrappings, and caught Barry's suspicious, hostile glance as Barbara took the pail into her own hands.

"Barry—what fun! You came down in the afternoon train! Here's Link, in the gloom. We've been laboring like parrots for an hour. You're from poor darling—wait a minute. I'll make you a cup of cocoa or something."

"I didn't know you had asked Link down," Barry said stiltedly and displeasedly, his teeth chattering as he cast off his outer garments and sat lamely down by the fire.

"You sound as if you had a cold dear!"

"Oh," he spoke babbly, long-sufferingly. "I'm extremely ill."

"Barry! Then you ought to be in bed."

Barry looked with elaborate significance at Link. And Link immediately arose to go.

"Bad weather for colds, and it's a rotten day, too," Link said cheerfully. "Take care of yourself, Barry. You wouldn't let me to ask Bonner to come down?"

"Please don't trouble yourself. I wouldn't drink cocoa in the state I'm now in if you paid me," Barry said in an undertone to Barbara, choosing to let it appear that he had not heard Link.

"Good-bye, Kate—your Uncle Link thinks you're a great baby!" Link said to the cradle. "Good-bye, Barbara. Love to Amy and your father when you write!"

"I will," she walked with him to the door, composedly enough, but he saw that she was nervous.

Notable Chiefs Figure in Ontario Powwow

WITH grave discussions on Indian problems occasionally relieved by the fierce dances of an earlier day, the Six Nations Indians held their annual powwow in the long house of their Tuscarora, Ontario, Township reserve. Representatives of American tribes were present, and the Great Spirit thanked for a good harvest. The photographs above show: (1) Chief Levi Jacob, grand old man of the reserve, whose booming voice was frequently heard in the council; (2) Mrs. S. Jamieson, who from some special mark of favor was the first woman permitted to join the rattle dance, which broke up the first powwow on Tuesday; (3) Chief Levi Jacob, Jr., huskiest of the band, who is also son of a chief; (4) Chief John Beaver, who takes his tribal role seriously and at first resented the invasion of white men in the person of the photographer; (5) Chief Charlie Hill, who led the war dance; (6) the Long House of pine logs in which the powwow was held; (7) Chief Jerry Blue Eye (his real English name) who is poison to the theory that Indians are always serious and quiet. Jerry was the life of the party.

"Doctor?" he asked, raising his eyebrows, just at parting. She compressed her lips, raised her eyebrows, and faintly shook her head. There was even a cryptic smile behind her eyes.

"Shut it!" Barry shouted, and with something between a desperate laugh and a shocked and apologetic exclamation Barbara slammed the heavy door up on the patio.

Mounting his horse, Link looked uncertainly toward the patio door, might she come out to the line of baby garments that were writhing and bellying like little ghosts in the cool, windy twilight, and say good-bye to him again? What was going on in there, in the dark, low-browed old kitchen, with the sick, surly, and one's self shaken up and interested and a part of the world again, Barbara felt the happiness, the lightness of her changed mood in everything she did, in every step she took, felt it, indeed, written upon her face. But Barry was the immediate duty, and she took care that he should have no cause to suspect that she was thinking of anything else.

"God, I've had a frightful day!" Barry presently burst out aggressively.

"You missed your train?" Barbara was merely assisting the conversation, but Barry stopped drinking his tea, and looked over his cup with a sort of patient sneer.

"Oh, no, I got it, of course!" he said.

Barbara said nothing to this, being not so much angry as bored

by his rudeness, and not surprised at all.

ADMIRAL BRUEN HERE MONDAY

President and Secretary of British Sailors' Society Will Address Local Organizations

The work of the British Sailors' Society and kindred Canadian organizations is being being given considerable advertisement in this country at the present time by the visit to the Dominion of Admiral R. F. Bruen, president of the society, and Mr. Barker, its general secretary, who are to arrive in Victoria on Monday in the course of their tour of inspection. During their stay in the city they will be the guests of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor at Government House.

Admiral Bruen and Mr. Barker are in Canada in the interests of the British Sailors' Society and to stimulate greater interest in the welfare of British sailors and seamen throughout the Empire through seamen's institutes and similar organizations.

It is not generally known, outside the groups of men and women who are giving their time and work, that the Prince of Wales has interested himself deeply in the British Sailors' Society, and that Admiral Bruen and Mr. Barker in coming to Canada carry with them the Prince's personal good wishes for the success of their mission.

Soon after their arrival at Government House an opportunity will be afforded Admiral Bruen of meeting the executive of the local Connaught Seamen's Institute. On Tuesday the Admiral will be the guest of the Kiwanis Club at luncheon, and will give an address. He will then proceed to the Connaught Seamen's Institute, where the Ladies' Guild is giving a reception tea to which a number of invitations have already been issued. It is expected that Admiral Bruen will address this gathering also. On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Curtis Sampson will entertain the visitors on behalf of the Provincial Chapter, I.O.E., at "Molten Combe," and other engagements are also being made for their entertainment while they are in the city. They will return to Vancouver on the afternoon of Thursday.

VIC FOLEY SIGNED FOR BOUT WITH FIELDING HERE

Cliff O'Mara Badly Injured in Workout Session at Willows

Former Winnipeg Pro on Victoria Cubs Line-Up May Have Fractured Jawbone—Osie Osmundsen May Get Tryout With Squad

The first casualty among the Cubs occurred yesterday afternoon during a workout at the Willows Arena, when Cliff O'Mara, husky right-winger, was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital after suffering from a head injury. O'Mara came together with Redpath and Kenney about halfway through the session, and had to be carried from the ice.

At first it was thought that the injury was only a minor one, but O'Mara suffered considerably and he was taken to the hospital where X-ray pictures were taken. It is feared that he may have sustained a broken jawbone, although the X-ray pictures were not ready last night. If a fracture has been found, it is possible that O'Mara will be out of the game for some weeks.

The accident comes at the time when the local squad was just beginning to hit its stride. O'Mara was the chief whip to Manager Smith and Captain Borland in handling the team, and has been doing some great work in welding the ex-amateurs and pros together. The extent of the injury will not be known until this morning.

WOULD BE BIG BLOW
The loss of O'Mara at this stage of the game would be a big blow to the team. Cliff played with the Winnipeg team last year, and was one of the leading scorers in the league.

The local unit showed up well at the workout yesterday, especially Herman Runge at center. Runge unloaded a carload of speed and his slickhandling was beautiful. He scored some pretty goals from difficult angles.

Manager Joe Smith stated yesterday that he had received a letter from "Osie" Osmundsen, a member of last year's Capitals. Osmundsen asked for a tryout with the local team, and declared he would reach town next week. He was a prime favorite with the fans here, and his clean play won him many followers. He is a beautiful skater and packs a bullet drive. Definite word is expected within the next couple of days.

TWO WORKOUTS A DAY
Next week double practices will be held. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the team will go through strenuous sessions, and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday will begin to taper off for their opening game at Vancouver on November 19. A large number of Victoria fans will make the trip for that game.

Bill Borland figures on collecting a swanky sweater coat besides his pay cheque from the team's pilot.

Some Players Make Queer Antics in Sleep

WHAT'S THE IDEA OF ALL THE NOISE YOU'RE KEEPING ME AWAKE?
I'VE BEEN TRYING TO MAKE TOUCHDOWNS ALL NIGHT SLEEPING IN THIS FOUR POSTER

HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR NEW ROOMMATE?
TERRIBLE—I CAN'T GET A WINK OF SLEEP WITH THAT GUY—HE WALKS AROUND ALL NIGHT MAKING PASE HITS IN HIS SLEEP

By AL DEMARÉE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Politics, football and baseball make strange bedfellows. Knute Rockne told me once of one of his players saying he couldn't sleep with a certain roommate picked out for him, and who kept trying to make touchdowns all night in an old-fashioned four poster bed. Ball players are just as particular. Players who snore, grind their teeth in their sleep, talk and walk in their sleep or keep the light on into the wee small hours, while they read about their base hits, have a tough time getting roommates.

Babe Ruth is a notable exception. He is one of the few players in the major leagues who rooms by himself. Even in the days when he did share a room with a buddy, his roommate seldom saw him. Wally Pipp said he roomed with Ruth for two years and never saw anything of him but his wardrobe trunk. The trunk was moved in every town they played and moved out when they left. The only time Wally ever saw his famous "roomie" was out at the ball park in the afternoon.

McGraw once asked Josh Devore who he was rooming with. "Rube" Marquard, answered the quipless Devore. "Gosh!" said McGraw, there's nothing in that room but the furniture."

BLACKHAWKS TO BE STRONG

Manager of Chicago Puck-chasers Sells Many Veterans and Rookies in Re-building Team

CLEM LOUGHLIN IS STILL WITH SQUAD

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Tired of being the doormat of the hockey world with a group of experiments, the Chicago Black Hawks have set about building a combination that is apt to cut a big figure in hockey circles this winter.

The first step in the comeback campaign of Major Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the club, was the acquisition of Herb Gardiner, of the Canadiens, as manager. Gardiner was the ace of the Canadiens' defense for the past two years. Gardiner, however, will not be a playing manager, as the terms of his contract specify that he shall not play for the Hawks.

Manager Gardiner took the next step in the rebuilding of the club, the acquisition of a number of veterans and rookies. Babe Dye, star forward, who was out of much of last year's competition with a broken leg, was sold to the New York Americans. Rabbit McVeigh went to the same club in a trade that brought Alex McKinnon, a forward, to the Black Hawks. Trapp, Moran and McCollum were sent to the newly-organized Tulsa club, of the American Association, along with several younger players, picked up near the end of last season, when the Black Hawks' management was striving desperately to whip together a winning combination.

HOLDS FAST VETERANS
With one idea, and that speed, Gardiner retained the fast veterans. To this nucleus he has added a group of new men that have proved themselves with other clubs of the circuit and with American Association teams.

In accord with Gardiner's desire for speed, the Black Hawks' owner has added to the otherwise inexperienced but fast defense, Clem Loughlin, thirty-six-year-old Detroit-Cougar. Back from last year will be Mervin Wentworth, Ralph Taylor and Val Hoffinger.

As goal tenders Gardiner has retained Chuck Gardiner, club's best goalie in the league, and purchased Bill Beveridge, promising rookie from Ottawa.

Four of the fastest skaters in the minor league ranks have been added to the forwards, where five veterans were retained. Vic Ripley comes from Kitchener, Ont., with a good reputation as a skater and follower of the puck in the Canadian Professional League, while Leo Couture and Johnny Gottselig were the stars of the Winnipeg club last year. The other forward is Robert Burns, leading wing man of the Duluth club.

Fighting for retention of their positions are Dick Irvin, captain; Ty Arbour, Mickey Mackay, Duke Keats and Earl Miller.

Oxford and Cambridge Track Teams Will Visit States Next Summer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 9.—Track and field athletes of Oxford and Cambridge universities are expected to visit the United States next summer to compete against the combined forces of Yale and Harvard. The 1929 meeting will be held at Harvard Stadium.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Your swing should work equally well with wood or iron clubs

Why do some people play well with the wood clubs and poorly with the iron or vice versa?

By JOE NOVAK

Fundamentally, all clubs should be swung in the same manner. In other words, all clubs should be played alike regardless of whether they are wooden or iron. This is so for the reason that each club has been designed for a specific purpose or shot and the only way to secure that purpose or effect is to let the club do it. However, some golfers find they get better results with the wood clubs and others get better results with the irons. This does not mean that the woods should be played one way and the irons another. It simply means that certain golfers develop a type of swing better suited to a lofted club; hence, they favor iron clubs because they get good results with them and others get better results with straight faced clubs and therefore favor the wood clubs.

One's swing is not just right unless it works equally well on wood, iron and woods.

Jardine Scores Third Century For English XI

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 9.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters) —Making his third century in as many innings, D. W. Jardine, the Surrey batsman, playing for England against New South Wales today, set up a new record for Anglo-Australian cricket. No other batsman ever started a four with three consecutive first-innings hundreds.

Jardine scored 140 in the three hours and twenty minutes he was at the wicket. A feature of his batting was his superb back play, which accounted for his high score. He hit fourteen fours and three sixes. His hits included fourteen fours. The English team had scored 372 for three wickets when stumps were drawn. Not only did Jardine collar the bowling, but Hammond and Hendren put up a fine display. Hammond was 96 not out, and Hendren 47 not out. Hammond scored very rapidly and already has ten fours to his credit.

FEATHERWEIGHTS TO MEET IN TEN-ROUND GO NEXT SATURDAY

Vancouver Flash Postpones Visit to Australia to Take on Local Fighter—Bout May Be Staged at Armories—Fine Supporting Card Will Be Lined Up

Joe Bayley Wagers Big Side Bet On His Protege With Jack Allen

Billy Davies, matchmaker of the Victoria Boxing Club, announced last night that he had been successful in securing the services of Vic Foley for a ten-round bout with Tommy Fielding here next Saturday night.

After witnessing Vic Foley in action last Monday night against "Kid" Leo Roy, Manager Joe Bayley is positive in his mind that Tommy can beat Foley, and he offered to wager $1,000 with Jack Allen, providing he consented to have his protege appear against the local crack on November 17. Foley, it appears, was due to leave for Australia in a few days' time, as he has no hand in the local game. A number of fights booked for him in that country, so Allen was reluctant to change his plans unless the local club would guarantee a fair purse and Bayley made good his promise of a $1,000 side bet. This Bayley agreed to do so, and he has already deposited a certified cheque for that amount. As far as the purse was concerned the local club was at a loss to know what to do, as the amount Foley demanded was greatly in excess of the total gate taken in at any previous promotions in this city. Several well-known local sportsmen, however, have come to the club's assistance and they have put up sufficient funds so that the club can meet the exorbitant demands of the manager of the ex-champion, and last night Allen consented to postpone the Australian trip, and will have Foley on hand to battle the local boy next Saturday night.

MAY BE AT ARMORIES
The club has not as yet decided where the bout will be held, but they hope to secure the Armories, as it is felt that it would be impossible to successfully stage the contest in any of the smaller halls.

The boys will fight at the Junior lightweight limit, and have agreed to weigh in at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the bout. Allen has agreed to have Foley finish his training in Victoria, and he will work out here next Wednesday night.

Allen also raised the question of who would act as judges and referee, as he was not satisfied with the manner in which the recent bouts held here have been conducted. When he was informed that the officials would be selected by a commission comprised of Chief of Police John Fry and W. H. Mearns, he was satisfied.

Worriors Fails to Sign With Pirates

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 9.—Hank Milks, and Harold Darragh, stars of the Pittsburgh Pirates, failed to come to terms with the management last night. Officials of the club announced following upon a conference with the players that they would be allowed to leave.

RUGBY LINE-UPS

The following will represent the Pirates in their match with the J.B.A.A. today: Howell, Graves, Hunnington, Parfit, Davis, D. Parfit, Wailes, Stocks, Lemm, Florence, Lee, G. McRae, Disnecker, Henley, Bundock, Weaver and Cornhill.

The following members of the 16th Canadian Scottish Intermediate Rugby team are requested to be at the Oak Bay Park at 2:45 p.m. sharp: Stewart, Jackson, Bradwood, Christie, Spence, Matterford, Fuller, Gann, E. McRae, B. H. Stewart, King, Davis, Carzai, Taylor, Grant, Morley, Hobson and Webb.

Creighton Not Signed

WINNIPEG, Nov. 9.—Reports that Jimmy Creighton, star centre forward of the Brandon Hockey Club, had signed a contract to play with the Kansas City Planners, of the American Hockey Association, are premature. Jimmy today said the terms offered by the Kansas City club were unsatisfactory and that he would probably play with Port Arthur in the Senior Amateur League this season. A Winnipeg player of two seasons ago, Barney Harrison, had signed with the Minneapolis Millers, of the American Hockey Association. He will play defense. Last year he was with the Chicago club, of the National Hockey League.

Practice Soccer

Maple Leafs and Victoria West juvenile soccer eleven will play a practice game at Central Park at 10:30 o'clock on Thanksgiving Day. The teams will be as follows:

Victoria West—Spencer, Coles, McConnell, Russell, B. Hill, Jones, E. Hill, Partington, Richard, Roseman, and McInnes; reserves, Bell, Alexander and Brackett.

SAWMILL WASTE BEING UTILIZED

Experimental Work of Kraft Sulphate Plant Makes Interesting Story

A review of American technical literature indicates that notable progress is being made in the United States in the development of industries using waste wood as their raw material, says the Department of the Interior, through its natural resources intelligence service. In Canada it is considered that there are many opportunities for such industries producing pressed boards or artificial lumber, insulating board, flour, paper, etc.

The pulp and paper industry has now spread over six of the nine provinces and has brought to the Dominion the distinction of being the leading newspaper producing country of the world, a distinction, however, not achieved without the serious depletion of the country's forest resources. What is true of the newspaper industry is true of most of Canada's other paper plants, that they are essentially primary wood-using industries consuming virgin timber. In some instances by-product industries are commencing to appear, such as in the establishment of fibre-board mills to use wood waste from the large newspaper plants.

For the most part, however, such economies as are being worked out are directed towards the greater utilization of the variety of wood usually pulped-spruce. Vast quantities of other woods continue to be wasted, notably in sawmill refuse. There are in Canada nearly 3,000 sawmills. That means that at 3,000 points in the Dominion there is the problem of disposing of sawdust, slabs, edgings and other forms of lumber waste. Sawmill owners as well as forest economists are disturbed over the waste of this material which ought to be useful in industry, but to date the outlet, except for such quantities as are used for fuel, continues to be the trash burner. Everyone has seen these huge steel towers with their screw augers and the endless stream of wood fragments being fed into them, material which could form the raw material for many useful commodities.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

The Natural Resources Service has on various occasions pointed out new developments in industries using wood waste. One particularly interesting process outlined some months ago is that invented by William H. Mason, whereby one company in the United States has retired from active service its large and unsightly trash burner, and is converting its mill waste into a readily salable insulating material for building construction. "Puffed wood" was the way this interesting invention was referred to because the wood particles were actually exploded into light, fluffy material which was afterwards treated as in paper making, being formed into a sheet on a fourmiler or wire screen and then pressed into insulating board. If still further pressed to one-eighth inch in thickness, an artificial lumber is produced, the material being transformed into a dense stiff board of high tensile strength, equivalent to that of many woods with grain, and ten times as strong as wood across the grain.

This artificial lumber can then be polished, grained by a photographic process, and varnished or lacquered to give the appearance of hardwood, such as walnut or mahogany.

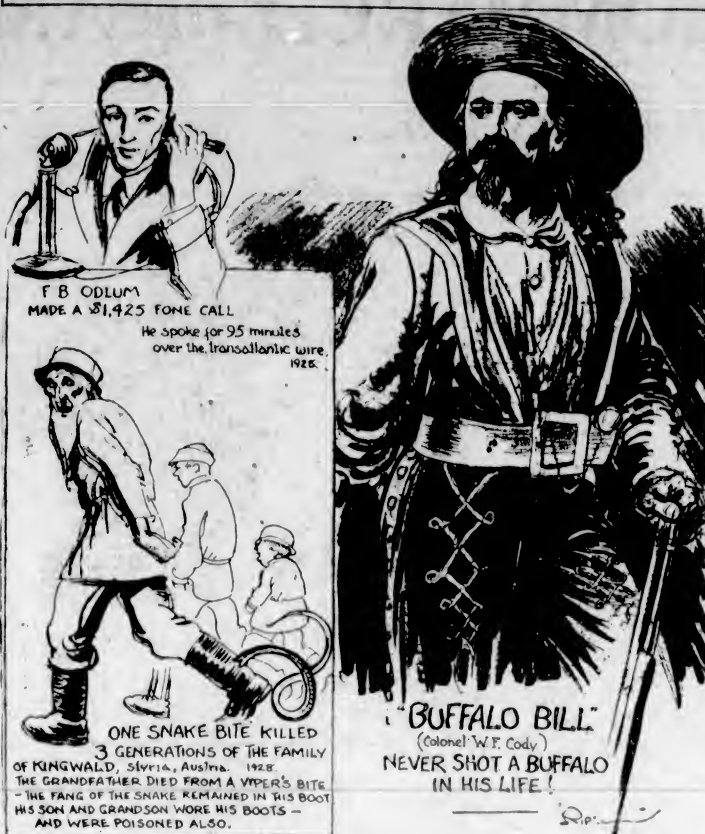

The Mason process, it is understood, is not dependent on a particular variety of wood, and therefore has wide application in the utilization of sawmill waste. Mr. Mason's original objective was to make paper. It is interesting therefore to note that news comes from the Pacific Coast of the successful operation in the State of Washington of a kraft paper plant which depends for its raw material on the wood refuse from the world's largest sawmill. From this plant there is turned out a product known as kraft liner used for the inside and outside of corrugated shipping containers. A 113-inch paper machine is turning out close to 100 tons daily of this paper, and another machine, recently added, produces thirty tons a day of light-weight wrapping and bag paper.

HUGE RECOVERY

This represents an enormous recovery of valuable commodities from what was formerly waste and it will be of great interest to Canadians to learn that the wood material used is Douglas fir, the premier saw timber of the Pacific Coast province. If Douglas fir refuse can now be successfully and economically pulped and used for the production of kraft paper, will not further research directed in Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, tells of the experimental work and designing of the kraft sulphate plant, a feature of which is that the obnoxious odor ordinarily associated with the paper kraft industry has been entirely eliminated. This odor produced in the recovery of the spent cooking liquor, it is stated, has precluded the establishment of plants in thickly settled communities where manufacturing facilities were most numerous. The design of an odorless recovery plant was in itself an important contribution to the technique of paper making, and at once enlarges the possibilities for establishment of waste wood paper plants; more important perhaps is that the operation carried on at Longview, Washington, marks the first successful attempt to use fire exclusively for the recovery of the raw material in sulphate pulping. Two chipping plants located at the source of the refuse wood at the sawmill supply the necessary chips which are conveyed in specially constructed cars to the paper mill located about a mile distant. Here they are unloaded, screened, and then accurately weighed by an ingenious device as they pass along a moving conveyor belt. A continuous sampler removes small samples of the chips for determination of moisture content, and the sawmill company is paid for the dry weight of wood supplied. Here, then, is a source of revenue for the sawmill owner, as well as of profit for the paper mill. In addition the sawmill supplies all of the

ANSWERS QUESTION "DO MOOSE CHARGE?"

New Brunswick Hunter Forced to Climb Tree by Wounded Animal

Do moose charge? That has long been a mooted question and Edward Breck, in an article on the subject in the November issue of Outdoor Life, answers the question in the negative. He allows, however, that there are cases when moose do charge, and T. M. Brewer, a resident of Devon, New Brunswick, agrees with that after an experience he has had during the present hunting season in the New Brunswick woods.

It happened in the Miramichi wood, where Mr. Brewer, who is now nearing seventy years of age, was completing a three days' hunting trip, and it provided him with the most exciting thrills he has ever had in his lifetime. After hunting all morning he finally sighted a large bull moose and took a shot at him. The bullet did not enter the vital place of the animal's anatomy which the hunter had aimed at, and the wounded monarch of the forest plunged through the

If this measurement is correct it is a larger spread than the record moose head for all Canada in 1927, which was shot by A. W. Christman, of Red Bank, New Jersey, in the Rocky Brook woods, north of Bozonsville, on the Miramichi, and had antlers spreading sixty-three and a half inches by actual measurement.
